Scheduling is Sometimes Hectic

Amid moans and groans at the thought of classes and homework, there was an air of excitement as friends renewed old acquaintances in the East Balcony and downstairs gym. This was the atmosphere at the September scheduling for juniors and seniors. Scheduling for sophomores and freshmen had been done the previous year by computer.

Arena scheduling for eleventh and twelfth graders involved students selecting their own classes, teachers and periods. A new system was developed which improved public relations between faculty, students, and parents. Each teacher was assigned a small group of students to help them choose their classes and make sure all of their credits were being fulfilled. Before school began, it was possible to have an individual conference with each student and their parents to discuss any problems which may have arisen.

Senior, Brenda Bullock, thought that this program was great. "I'm glad we had someone to help us. My parents really appreciated it too. It seems they're showing more concern. Mr. Cantonwine really helped me a lot and gave me good tips on what classes to take. This is the first year they've really gotten involved and I think it's a super idea!"

Arena scheduling also took place for second semester registration. This became even more hectic with the addition of freshmen and sophomores who were undergoing this ritual for the first time.

Saxons take District . . .

"Becoming District Champions is something all of us can be proud of," commented Mr. Dave Johnson, coach of the boys' Varsity Football Team.

Mr. Johnson's attitude about the season was very optimistic. "I believed that we would be city champions," stated Mr. Johnson. "It was a great season. One of South's best regular season records." The win over Corvallis put the team in the lead for the district title. Johnson said, "It was exciting, but much more exciting was the fact that they were ranked number one in state. Our players deserved to win. The win was a gift to our football program, school, and city of Salem. At the end of the game, with the crowd flowing onto the field, it was a tremendous sight and feeling." The players' attitudes of the season were very positive. "They worked very hard all last year to become stronger, faster, quicker, and more skilled. They all wanted to reach their potential," commented Mr. Johnson. The team led the conference in defense, allowing the least amount of points scored. "It was our time in '79", said Mr. Johnson. This was the team's motto for the year.

Johnson gave credit to all of his starters for their hard work, and their great season. All of the hard work, and effort was put into ending the season with an 8-1 season record, taking district. The team then went on to play in the state tournament. They lost a very close game 14-16 to Forest Grove, in the last few minutes of play.

"I had a great season, in which I obtained many of my goals I set last year for myself, like starting at left guard, getting stronger, and being district champions," said Centers.

Drive blocking was what Centers felt the strongest part of his game was. "A lot of our plays are up the middle, or off the guards block. Since I have been an offensive lineman for 8 years, I have drive-blocked many opponents," commented Centers.

"I love playing guard. One has to be quick, strong, agile, able to pull and block down field, and able to keep low when blocking," he also added. "I had played center for three years. At Parrish Middle School, I started playing guard. I've played guard ever since. I was one of the bigger guys in the league this year."

Centers plan to attend U of O or OCE, majoring in P.E. or Athletic Training.

Marching Band Stepping out for football

A

One of the major supporters of the Varsity Football Team was the Marching or Concert Band.

The Marching Band played at all the home football games, helped the rally with cheers, and played the alma mater at the end of each game. They were not able to play at two of the games because of rain.

Many hours of practice were spent learning the patterns and formations. They spent fifth period class practicing with the Saxonets.

Richard Rothweiler was the drum major and one of the seventy members of the Marching Band. "We took up half a football field," stated Faith Campbell. "We felt we added a lot to half-time and boosted school spirit."

Saxon Supremacy isn't just a slogan

Saxon Supremacy wasn't just a slogan for the Junior Varsity football team. Coaches Terry Haugen and Terry Fischer led the Saxons to nine consecutive victories and the league championship. Attaining the number one spot in the league wasn't easy, it took a special type of team. In the words of Coach Fischer, "defensively, we were able to adjust to meet whatever challenge the offense gave us; offensively we were well balanced between running and passing." Another quality that helped the team was the fact that they never gave up. In six of the nine games the team came from behind to win. "That shows a lot of character," said Coach Haugen.

There were many outstanding personal accomplishments along with the accomplishments of the team as a whole. Quarterback

Aaron Thomas had a total of 1,019 yards passing with ten touchdown passes. One of Aaron's favorite receivers, Jon Ballantyne, topped the statistics on yards per catch with a 19.36 yard average. Greg Gossack was the leading rusher with 650 yards and an average of 8.26 yards per carry. The total offense for the season was 2,713 yards. Nat Goforth was singled out by his team mates as most inspirational player of the year.

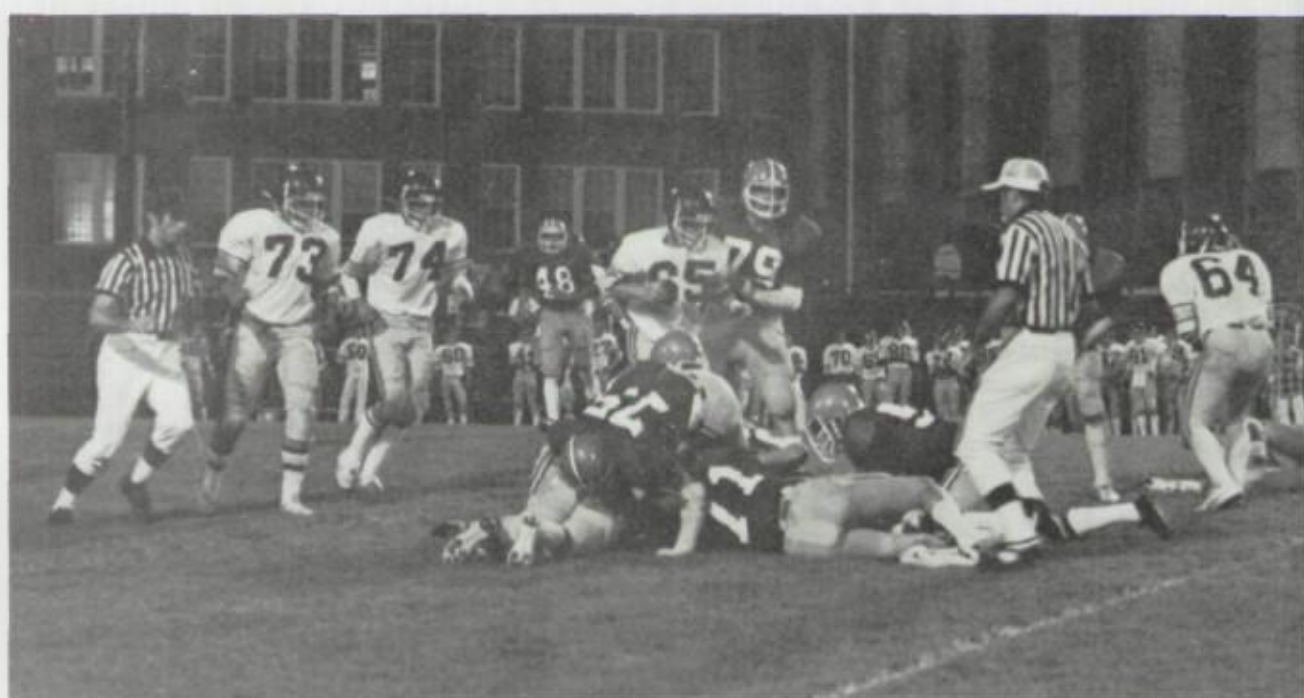

Coach Fischer summed up the spirit of the team, its season and the upcoming years when he said, "There is a winning tradition here at South, winning can be infectious, once you discover what it's like to consistently win, you work hard to keep the good feeling."

"I enjoy competing against people my age and older. I also enjoy my position, it's a position of leadership." This was the response of Sophomore quarterback Aaron Thomas, when asked why he enjoyed playing football. He felt his most important goal in relationship to high school football was helping South get to the state play-offs during his varsity years. Aaron cited "winning and contributing to a win" as one of his favorite parts of football.

Spirit: The word for freshmen

Winning one game and losing six, the Freshman football team should have been down. But that was not the case with this year's team. Spirit was the main word for the Freshmen. By chanting "offense" or "defense" throughout the games, they tried to boost each other's morale. This, along with the support of the team captains, Dan Sralie and Dan Pickens, kept the players in the games.

Freshman football was new this year with the addition of 9th grade students to South. New, also was the players' familiarity with the plays South ran. The Freshmen players had to learn the basic plays that the Varsity and Junior Varsity teams had learned in previous years.

Keeping their team healthy was one of the problems the coaches had to deal with. "Having people out with injuries was a large contribution to our losses," stated Scott Cross, defensive coach. Throughout the season, key people on defense and offense were hurt. Two of the team's quarterbacks, Dan Pickens and Todd Mitchell, were injured, which kept them from playing the remainder of the season.

Both Coach Cross and offensive coordinator Chuck Chamberlain said that the Freshmen team had improved from the first day to the last. "I had fun. It was my first year coaching Freshmen. They were a good bunch of kids," said Coach Chamberlain of his experiences with the team.

Tom Bailey, a defensive cornerback for the Freshmen team, had these comments. "We played pretty well, but in crucial moments, we didn't take advantage when we should have. We made mistakes you can't make to win.

"The coaches, they taught us a lot. They let most everyone play. They started 22 players, instead of starting some both ways."

Senior Supremacy Shines

"Seniors #1! Hey, Seniors #1!" That was the chant on Thursday night, November 29, as the Senior Powderpuffers defeated the threatening Juniors in a close, 16-8, march-up.

Prior to facing the Seniors, the Juniors easily put away the Sophomores, 22-0. The Seniors, originally scheduled to play the Freshmen, won by forfeit as the Freshmen could not recruit enough players to compose a team.

Seniors scoring against the Juniors were Judy Sommer, who broke free for 50 yards and a touchdown, and Pam Paschke, who pushed through the defensive line for six yards and six points. The Junior's only score came when Lisa Wipf faked a pass and dashed into the endzone.

The Wipf-ro-Wetherbee pass combination that caught last year's Juniors off guard in their 12-6 loss to the Sophomores, was still the major source of offense for the Juniors. Their effectiveness was hampered, however, by the presence of Senior Julie Stull. Stull, a defensive rover, always seemed to be in the right place at the right time, and was rewarded with four interceptions.

Half-time entertainment during the championship game included the crowning of 'Homely King' Dave Dowling and his escort Todd Eschelman. Another very special addition was the Senior Boys' Rally and Yell Queens, who cheered their teams on to the finish.

X-Country young but fast

Lots of hard work, time, and self-discipline were needed to help the Cross Country Team develop. The Coach, Mr. Ron Cross, and assistant coach, Mr. Jim Grant, worked with a lot of new students that had little or no experience in cross country. Both teams carried out the same pattern of practice in order to get ready for not only the regular meets, but also for the district and state meet. "Our practice pattern," explained Coach Cross, "was that we would go hard, then easy. Usually, our easy days are longer distance running at a slower pace. Then, we would have more difficult runs, like running up the soap-box derby track at Bush Park, or run 1,000 meter repeats."

The girls' team finished second in District, and placed fourth in State. Coach Cross commented on the team by saying, "The girls' team started out as a young group and it was really interesting to see some of the freshmen develop on the team." Coach Cross recognized freshman Julie Slama as the most developed runner on the team. MaryAnn Ahmed, a sophomore, and Peggy Murri, a freshman, were the top two runners for the team throughout the season. MaryAnn placed second in District, and 12th in State. Peggy placed third in District behind MaryAnn, and placed 18th in State.

For the boys' team, it was primarily a developing year. With the addition of freshmen to the team, many had no idea what cross country would actually be like. "The boys' team," said Coach Cross, "is similar to the girls' team. It was a young team where there were three freshmen on the varsity squad along with two juniors, so it was really a developing team." Jim Hutchinson, a junior, was recognized by Coach Cross as being the top runner for the boys' team. Senior Steve Siegrist, in his first year of cross country, was the boys' team's number two runner throughout the season.

MaryAnn Ahmed, a sophomore, expressed her thoughts about the season and how well the team did. "The season started out really good, although we lost to Sprague our first meet. Our team was very young, with few experienced runners. In the Saxon Invitational, everyone seemed to be really excited because it was our first big meet that any one of us had ever been in. Everyone on the team really worked hard together during the practices, and when we didn't have a practice, many of us would run about six miles. Besides that, I think it was a good season and everyone had lots of fun."

First Year Soccer . . .

A group of freshmen, sophomore, junior and senior athletes came together this year and gave South Salem the makings of a soccer dynasty. In a league in which all Salem schools were expected to flounder, South Salem quickly established itself as a team to be reckoned with. This first year team finished the season with a league record of ten wins and one loss and outscored their opponents 41 goals to 9, as well as having five players voted to the all league team. They were Steve Citron, Mike Smith, Ren Santa, Fernando Cezar, and Larry Pruitt.

South's team was plagued with injuries throughout the season. The team captain, John Honey, broke his leg and missed all but three games, fullback Daryl Gossack injured his ribs, and goalie Bruce Finneran dislocated his right shoulder, not to mention Fernando Cezar who nearly had to be taped together before every game. Fortunately the depth of talented reserve players were capable of filling in when needed and South earned a playoff berth its first season. As senior Steve Citron put it "We were a tremendously talented team that worked well together."

Four weeks and 11 games after the season started South's team, still wet behind the ears, traveled to Oregon City to take on Rex Purnam High School in the first round of the State Playoffs. Unfamiliarity with playoff rules, inclement weather conditions and perhaps a lack of expertise, all lead to South's downfall and they lost three goals to one. Still, this first year team had no reason for sorrow. The team did their best and according to junior Mike Smith, "We were great." Soccer had arrived at South Salem High.

"The only way I could describe this year's soccer team was "AWESOME". About half of this year's team played together last year, so we knew how good we were and what to expect from each other. We exceeded everyone's expectations, except for the team members themselves (who wanted to win at State).

This year was a lot of fun. The team went into every game with the idea that everything they did - number of shots, saves, offensive and defensive plays, etc. was going to be a school record. Anything we did, good or bad, was the best South's soccer team had ever done before. Also, there was relatively no pressure on the players. That was probably the biggest advantage to being a first year team. No one expected us to win, but we did (win), so it was a lot of fun. Coach Cooley, and the guys on the team made the season fun, or rather "tolerable" for me. After I broke my leg they still treated me like a member of the team. Without their comradery I never would have made it through the season. Watching from the sidelines, my senior year, was the hardest thing that I've ever done."

First Season a success

South Salem's first year Girls' Soccer Team had a very productive season with a record of four wins and two losses. The two losses were against Cresent Valley and Corvallis which have had previous years of experience in actual competition play. First year coach for the girls soccer team, Mr. Haight, said, "Corvallis had three more years of experience than we did. They weren't bigger girls or more athletic than our girls, they were just more experienced and knew what to do and where to go and how to play the game."

He went on to say that he had to start the games with mostly freshmen and only four out of the fifteen girls on the team had any previous experience playing soccer. "We had to teach them the rules of the game as we played, not only the techniques, but also the signals of the referee. We had to teach them everything from the ground up."

A more difficult problem was trying to get more girls interested into going out for the sport. When soccer was first introduced to South as a varsity sport, many of the students weren't that interested. He commented about this saying, "I had to really work to get people out to play."

When he had enough to make a team, the girls went on to start playing some games. The girls won their first game against South Albany (3-2) and then lost to Cresent Valley (6-0). From there on, the girls won most of their scheduled games against other Salem teams until they met Corvallis for the league title. The girls lost that game 10-0.

Coach Mr. Haight recognized Shannon Reilly as being the most dedicated and valuable player to the team. He said she scored many of the goals and she made almost every practice of the season and was one of the four who have had previous experience playing soccer. Tracy Johnson, Toni Andersen, and Michelle Buscher were the other three girls who were recognized by Coach Mr. Haight as being especially good on defense.

Lynn Bearon, a junior, expressed her thoughts about the first season of soccer and how well the team did in their first year of competition play. "We look upon this season as a winning one. We took third in league and had a lot of fun. Since we had a young and inexperienced team, this first year was helpful in reaching us the fundamentals of soccer and developing our competitive skills. We would like to thank our coach, Mr. Haight, for the time and effort he put into working with us. Without his coaching, we wouldn't have had the great season that we did."

J.V. girls have a winning season

"Bump, set, spike," was what was seen while the J.V. Volleyball team practicing at least three nights a week, during the first few months of school.

"It was a very successful season. It was successful for the girls in both their individual improvements and team play. These were reflected in their 12-7 record," remarked Miss Roberta Perkins, coach of the team.

The team consisted of twelve members. Helping the coach, were assistants Miss Mary Wright and Mr. Rick Ikeda.

A big "Thank-you" was in order for Miss Wright and Mr. Ikeda. They worked with the girls' individual problems, along with running plays. Sometimes even getting in and playing with the team. "Working with the girls was great fun. As a student teacher, I'm just old enough to have their respect as a coach, while I'm still close enough to high school life that I can be their friend too," Miss Wright mentioned.

The coaches felt that Corvallis was their toughest competition over the season. "They were an excellent team all-around," commented Miss Wright.

Miss Wright also mentioned, "Our team is made up of such diversity, that rather than one person being the strongest player, we have several strong players who work as a team to make our game a powerful one."

Laurie Southwell, a junior, has been playing Volleyball for five years, junior high and high school. She was captain, and one of the main setters for the J.V. team.

"We had a fair record, but so many people learned so much that next year should be near perfect," stated Southwell.

Learning how to set consistently was what Southwell concentrated on the most during the season. This helped her to be able to think about hand position and following through with her sets.

After the season, Southwell planned to play for a U.S.V.B.A. team, or to at least keep practicing her skills.

Volleyball to State

After beating McNary in the "season's most exciting game" according to Jan Wetherbee, the Girls' Volleyball team went on to participate in the state playoff. The girls went into the first round game against Dallas with the motto, "It's something new to do it in two," and they successfully pulled it off with a 15-8, 15-7 victory. The girls finished their season by qualifying for the second round of state with a loss to Ashland.

In coach Terry McLaughlin's words, the McNary game "Was the best game of the year. It was also the most satisfying game for the team because it meant a couple of different things: We would qualify for the state playoff and we beat a team that had beat us twice. We were able to put everything together." It was a tense game with the team serve changing many times. When Kelly McGhehey reinjured her knee the offense had to change and the excitement mounted. In the final round of play, the Saxons took just 10 minutes to win the final three points. Judy Sommer's powerful spike ended McNary's season, and sent the Saxons onto the second round of the playoffs.

Early in the season, Coach Terry McLaughlin predicted that his team would finish in the top four of the league, then go on to the district play-offs and qualify for the state tournament. Well that's exactly what they did!

Even though the team had quire a few injuries during the season, this situation actually proved advantageous. Since the injuries befell players in a leadership position, many of the team members were able to assume a captain role. On this subject, Coach McLaughlin commented, "Now we have a strong leadership situation. We had five different captains throughout the season and they all had a chance to see what it was like. It helped the team when Kelly McGhehey (our with injury) returned because they all look up to her.

Gymnasts end season gracefully

First year coach, Vicki VonRuden, led the girls' gymnastics team to a third place finish in the district meet, and an impressive 8-1 record. Two girls from the team went on to the state meet. Julie Tennenhouse, a junior, competed in all events except the vault.

When the annual team awards were given out, Angela Eldon was named "Most Improved", Julie Tennenhouse was named "Most Valuable", and Senior Mary Rogers was named "Most Inspirational".

Coach VonRuden said, "The girls showed tremendous improvement from the first day of practice to the last. Everyone worked together as a team . . . This year was a great year for both physical and psychological experience."

The boys' team had a somewhat less successful season as far as the win-loss record went, which was 3-8. The season record didn't reflect the ability or potential of the team or individuals. "It was a good building year for everyone. Next year South should have some very strong gymnasts and team", stated Coach Rob Huddleston in reference to the season.

Jon Olson was named "Most Valuable" by his teammates because "he consistently scored higher than anyone else on the team and was an all-around." Tony Byers and Lee Morgan were named "Most Improved", and Charlie Long was named "Most Inspirational".

For several weeks Ruth was seen hobbling around the halls on her crutches, due to an injured ankle. And if that wasn't enough, she also had a cast on her broken hand. What made Ruth want to come back? "It's such a thrill when you know you have done well and helped the team, you work all week or all year to get the moves and be better than everyone else, and then when you get the chance to prove yourself, that's just... indescribable."

We're the SENIOR GIRLS
 We're the great SENIOR GIRLS
 And forever how rowdy we are.
 We are loyal to
 The RED and BLUE
 Our love and our pride will shine through.
 We love SENIOR GUYS
 More than they realize
 And we know that they love us too.
 The CLASS OF 80
 Will shine through
 As the best in the whole darn school.

A second glance at Fall

Saxons get rowdy for Spirit Week

Spirit Week, during football season, was a time when students and faculty could show their pride and spirit in our school. Many activities were held which demonstrated this spirit and gave everyone a chance to express themselves.

To start off the week, the traditional decorating of class halls took place. As usual, seniors came in first place revealing unusual talents in their creative display. Themes ranged from "Freshmen Fever" to "Seniors: The Best in the West!"

Among the several dress-up days, were Tumbleweed Day and Mafia Day. On Tumbleweed Day, students dressed up in their favorite cowboy hats and boots. Numerous "shoor-outs" were witnessed throughout the day. Mafia Day was quite popular. Various outfits from the twenties, especially gangsters, were worn by students. Junior, Momi Lee, was heard to say, "I liked Mafia Day the best because that's when most people get involved and dressed-up."

On Halloween, Spook Day, students came dressed in imaginative costumes ranging from coneheads to Dracula. Competition for these outfits was held during lunch.

The highlight of the week was Friday's Pep Assembly. This was held to encourage everyone to come to the Homecoming game against West Albany later that evening.

Fireworks add a spark to Homecoming

Homecoming: A time for excitement, spirit, and anticipation. Although some forgot the reason for Homecoming, everyone joined in the activities. Traditionally, Homecoming was a chance for South alumni to return to a night to reminisce about their high school times. Many events led up to Homecoming Night and the big Homecoming Game. A rowdy Spirit Week was drawn to a close, the Homecoming Court was chosen, and mums were worn to show spirit.

The night began with many Saxon fans converging to watch the 7-1 football team battle W. Albany. Half-time entertainment included the Saxonnets performing a dance routine and the crowning of the 79-80 Queen, Alisa Huntley, by Joanne Chamberlain, 78-79 Homecoming Queen. Fireworks followed the coronation and ended half-time.

Another victory on the Saxon scoreboard added to the success of the festivities. The Homecoming Dance, with Summit providing the music, brought a close to the evening.

As a graduate of South, Joanne Chamberlain shared her thoughts about Homecoming. "A lot of things seemed different. There seemed to be lots of young kids around-probably freshman. South seemed the same. All the people were the same and the excitement of Homecoming was there, but I felt a little grown out of the whole system. Like it was someone else's turn to be in my shoes." Joanne, last year's Homecoming Queen, returned to crown the new Queen.

"Murphy's Law was in effect," said costume director Liza Taylor. God's Favorite by Neil Simon was a play about a tycoon, his wife, prodigal son, and a pair of kookie twins. In the play this tycoon was supposed to show his faith to God, no matter what happened.

The technical director Mr. Bob Brainard, wasn't hired until four weeks into the season. Consequently, the set wasn't finished until opening night. Mrs. Quambeck spent the last week of rehearsals polishing up the act and working on the sets.

During the play there were a few minor "disasters". One night a piece of the set was loose, and fell down. On another night one of the actor's zipper wasn't all the way up, so it caught and came down, which brought everyone into a laughing rage. Finally, one of the dimmers went out and started an electrical fire, which caused the show to end early.

Mrs. Quambeck said that even though just about everything went wrong, the kids were great, and so was the audience. "The kids did such a good job. There were no cross words or feelings, and there was a sense of being a team," said Mrs. Quambeck. "We must have been God's Favorite too."

Costume Director for South's Drama department was Senior Liza Taylor. Liza worked behind the scenes on many different productions, but she felt that her experience with "God's Favorite" stood out as being quite different.

"Being boss was difficult," said Liza Taylor, "but the hardest part was having to say 'no' to my friends. I really didn't want to be director," explained Liza, "I was up for Thespian President at first, but when elections were up I was elected costume director simply because I had the experience, and I could get things done." Liza didn't have a part in "God's Favorite" but she said she was going to try for parts in other plays. Liza stated, "I'm an actor/singer, not a costume director. It's not what I wanted but I like it."

Freshmen and Sophomores show true talents

During December, the Little Theatre was the site of much activity as the cast and crew of the first freshman-sophomore play, "The Thread that Runs So True", prepared for their opening night and ran for three nights.

Mrs. Jane Compton, the director, felt that the combination of the historical, folk, and humorous characteristics of the play would make it a nice presentation. Another reason was that, "It had a large cast so that twenty-seven people plus committees could be involved."

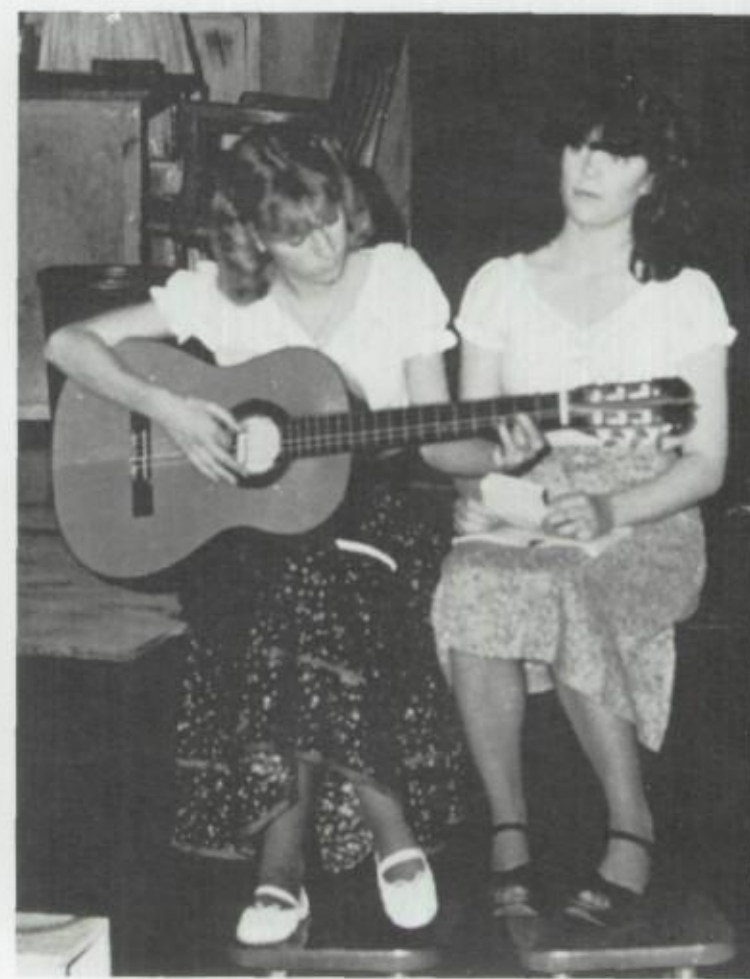

Mrs. Compton thought that the dedication, sense of humor, ambition, and desire for professionalism that the actors possessed were the major qualities of the largely inexperienced cast. Many had never acted in a play before, while others had performed at the Pentacle Theatre or in previous school plays.

Jesse Stuart, who was portrayed by sophomore Marc Webster, wrote the play from his own experience as a teacher in the Kentucky hills. It is the story of his many struggles, particularly with the school board, and the school bully, Guy Hawkins, played by Randy Shaw. Jesse Stuart also realizes that he is falling in love with one of his students, Naomi Dean, who was portrayed by Sarah Clifford, a sophomore.

The play opened in the Lonesome Valley Rural School during the month of July. One of the major highlights of the play was the scene in which a brawl took place between Jesse Stuart and Guy Hawkins.

Special Achievements don't go unnoticed

In just two years, Momi Lee grew from a novice racquetball player to one of the top junior players in the nation. As Momi's skills increased, she drew the attention of the Starmaster Company and the Courthouse Racquetball facility. These two companies later became her sponsors, furnishing her with clothes and equipment, and paying for her travel expenses. Momi competed in several national tournaments, traveling from Washington to Tennessee, but her greatest achievement was at home, at the Oregon Pro-Am, where she placed second losing only to the number one ranked woman player in the nation.

Hub-Dub, a group in which diabetic teenagers got together and went camping, had barbeques, or just talked, was created when Kelly Timm decided that "sharing with others helps." As a result of the formulation of this group, along with much volunteer work at the diabetes training unit at the hospital, Kelly received the Diabetic Youth Community Services Award. Kelly's Award included a $500 savings bond and an all-expense paid trip for two to Washington, D.C.

Joni Whitmore began competitively speaking in her junior year with the persuasion of coach Bob Withycombe. Tournament competition carried her to places such as Washington, California, and Illinois. Joni's main goal had always been to qualify for nationals in oratory, and after much hard work, including long nights spent at school videotaping and practicing, she achieved that goal. The speech she prepared for nationals, in Huntsville, Alabama, was a ten minute persuasive oratory entitled, "Quality in America".

South's Special Ed group devoted a great deal of time to physical education. The Special Ed basketball team wound up their season with an almost even 3-4 record. The Special Olympics, however, was the ultimate goal for the Special Ed athletes. Competition in the Olympics ranged from running to a softball throw and high jump. Winners in the regional meet, held annually at McCulloch Stadium, went on to compete in the State meet, where only the top athletes qualified for the National Special Olympics, held every four years.

Schoolboard and Superintendent oversee school policies

As the elected officials of the school district, the School Board had many responsibilities. They decided all major policies of the district and oversaw all other matters concerning education. Their chief administrator, Superintendent William Kendrick, saw that all policies of the School Board were implemented.

There were also assistant superintendents who dealt with specific concerns. Each assistant was also designated as a supervisor to a particular geographical area of the district. Areas of specialization included such things as the appropriation of government funds for educational programs.

L-SAC, the Local School Advisory Council, was set up to let interested citizens voice their opinions, comments, ideas, and/or complaints concerning the school. Each school had its own council. South's meetings were held on Tuesday evenings. The most common issues discussed at the meetings were: open campus and litter, traffic control, textbooks, and curriculum.

Secretaries keep on truckin'

Where did one go if he became lost? Who kept calm in the midst of chaos and mayhem? What would South High do without the aide of those 14 women in the office, the secretaries.

There were some new additions to the secretarial department in the way of staff and machines. In the past there was a lot of paper work and red tape. One addition was a computer. This computer, run by its qualified operator, Nancy Wilson, made schedule changes, grade changes, added new students, and withdrew transfer students. Plus, the computer made a print out of any information that appeared on the screen. In addition to the new computer, the secretarial staff was increased from 11 staff members to 14.

If one ever traveled through the office for some reason, chances were the first face seen was that of Janice Riley the receptionist. This was Mrs. Riley's first year as receptionist for South.

Mrs. Riley said, "I love reading and playing the piano in my spare time. I also enjoy spending time with my family." It is because of Mrs. Riley's devotion as a mother that she is presently employed as a secretary for the school district.

She became a crossing guard when her daughter started first grade so that she could have a part time job but still be a full time mother. As her daughter grew so did her responsibilities. She became a secretary at a local junior high and from there she became the receptionist for South High.

Meet the administration!

"We exist here for kids," said Mr. Wes Ediger, South's principal for the past eight years. "We want all kids to learn and experience success."

This year's administration consisted of six members. Each one took care of specific jobs relating to their specialized area. Mr. Ediger was in charge of administration, public relations, staffing, the budget, and was involved in all aspects of the school. Mrs. Gretta Gettis-Merwin took care of competencies, scheduling, transfers, and early graduation. Supervising student teachers, teacher evaluations, class counts, and field trips were some of Mr. John Neal's responsibilities. Mr. Larry Pettersen worked on attendance, discipline, student supervision, and student releases. Both Mr. Neal and Mr. Pettersen were new to South this year.

In charge of daily announcements and student government was Mr. Chuck Peter who was also a new member of the administration. Scheduling and rescheduling games, when there were conflicts, was part of the job of Mr. Dick Ballantyne.

"I'm real proud to be a Saxon. South High stands for excellence and tradition," stated Mr. Ediger.

B

"I've always been involved in education," said Mrs. Gretta Gettis-Merwin, Vice-principal in charge of operations. "I began at North Salem High School as an English teacher, and I also worked in speech and drama. Next, I went to McNary. I've taught elementary school, grades three through six. I was a school librarian at Candalaria and taught at Baker, Roberts, Clear Lake, and Keizer elementary schools. Then I was administrative assistant at Parrish Junior High before coming to South.

When asked how her job had changed since the 77-78 school year when Mrs. Gettis-Merwin first came to South, she stated, "When I first came here, I was in charge of pupil personnel which meant that I dealt with discipline and attendance, and I was also Activities advisor. Now, I'm in charge of operations, which has been quite a change.

Custodians and Cooks are tough behind the scenes

Working in the empty halls and vast recesses of the school, there were two groups of people who, despite their apparent remoteness from the students, played a major role in the everyday life of the school. These people were the custodians and cooks.

Contrary to popular belief, custodial work was not simply sweeping the halls and cleaning up. It was the custodians' responsibility to maintain all basic functions of the building, such as the heating and electricity, along with overall appearance. The staff of custodians included day custodians, night custodians, engineers, and a marron.

South's kitchen was quite busy everyday. Not only were the cooks preparing food for South, but also for nine surrounding schools. As a central kitchen, South would cook the food and send it to schools to be reheated and served.

The Comprehensive Lunch Program set down by the state had basic requirements for the lunch menus. A new and popular addition to the menu was a self-service salad bar.

Language classes have many benefits

There were many good reasons for taking a foreign language class at South. It greatly increased the vocabulary and meant better preparation for college, as they were solid courses.

Foreign language classes taught more than just vocabulary and sentence structure. They told of the countries' cultures and gave a general background of different lives. It was felt that it was to the student's advantage to take such a course.

French was taught mainly by Mrs. Smith. However, to reduce her workload, Mr. Ball instructed one period of second year French. Mrs. Moss assisted Mrs. Wolff in the same way by teaching one period of Spanish II. Mrs. Maurer, who returned from a year in Germany, taught all of the German classes.

German teacher, Mrs. Maurer, spent an interesting year teaching in Erlangen, West Germany as part of a teacher exchange program. The schools in Germany are quite different from those in America. The students are much more inquisitive and there is more general class participation. As Mrs. Maurer put it, "It was a great experience! All people should have the chance to take part in such a program!"

Many "note-worthy" additions to music department

Imagine for a moment that you conducted the orchestra, led the band, or directed the choir. There were four people at South who did just that.

The music department was expanded with the addition of two new faculty members: Mr. Pere Frjola and Ms. Deb Branstetter. Along with the two new music teachers, came broader choices of the already wide variety of music classes. The addition of the new music classes was to accommodate the increased volume of students. These were concert chorus, "Jazz Ecce-tera," stage band I, and concert band I. These new classes catered to the freshmen and sophomores.

The seemingly dedicated Michael Crawford spent much of his time at school working with one of his five choirs. He loved every minute of it.

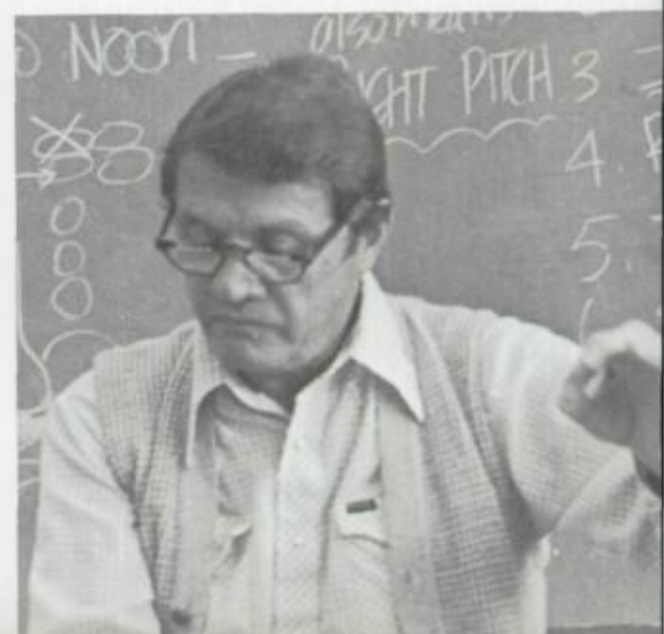

When Mr. Crawford was not directing his choirs he was at home with his family, swimming in the pool that he built himself or yes, directing another choir at his church.

Mr. Crawford loved a challenge. He challenged himself every day by forming young minds and voices of his students.

What did Mike Crawford feel was the most rewarding thing about his job? "Seeing the program grow." Mr. Crawford saw a lot of growing, as he planned to remain choral director.

Art teachers expand aesthetic horizons

New things happened to South's Art Department this year. Mrs. Hughes took a stained glass class in order to be more skilled in teaching one. She said, "Being a student again is great, it gives me a new perspective on being a teacher, and I now remember what it was like being a student." Mr. Brainard, the only new teacher to the department, worked part time teaching painting, art fundamentals, and stage craft. "It's quite a challenge," confided Mr. Brainard, "but I like it."

Mr. Jacobson was the new Fine Arts Leader. This not only included art, but music and drama as well. "I make sure that the proper school information is passed down to the right people in my department. I also help them in any way I can."

Finally, Mrs. Poole emphasized more on the art history, in Art Career Exploration. She felt that it was important, and the students needed the training if they planned on getting a degree in Liberal Arts. "I'd like to see a semester class in Liberal Arts, or a full year class in Art, Music, Literary, and Political History," she said.

A. STANDING: Mr. Jacobson, Mrs. Hughes Sitting: Mr. Brainard, Mrs. Poole. B. Mrs. Hughes explains the fundamentals of art to her students.

ACE, Art Career Exploration, was one of the classes that required application. Mr. Jacobson said, "ACE is for qualified Seniors only. The applicant has to be a qualified senior interested in art. When applying for the class the students have to tell what their interests are, and submit three pieces of their art work, which will be judged."

Mr. Jacobson explained that the first semester of ACE was classes of Advanced Design and Art History, taught by Mrs. Poole and Mrs. Hughes, respectively. Mr. Jacobson taught the second semester, which involved guest speakers from the Salem and Portland areas. The students also went through a Work Experience class.

"There were only fourteen jobs available," said Mr. Jacobson, "We have had to turn down some applications. Some of the jobs are Graphics, Pottery, Illustrating with the Statesman, Jewelry, Bush Barn, and Bush House."

"I feel that it's an especially good class for seniors who are interested in art careers," he explained.

Home Ec staff encourages students

The main goal of the Home Economics staff was to take a positive attitude concerning their students. Rather than looking for the bad things, they felt it was more important to find the good points about them. It was also important to always be available to help with any problems the students may have had.

There were more boys participating in the foods program but more would have been welcome in any of the other classes, especially sewing. The faculty tried to publicize the Home Ec department because they would have preferred to have had more students involved.

Two new teachers, Mrs. Cross and Mrs. Havel, were added to the Home Ec teaching staff. Mrs. Havel, who came to South from Parrish Jr. High, enjoyed it here very much. She indicated a liking to teach high school much better than junior high. "South has a well-equipped Home Ec department. It's a pleasure to work with the other teachers. Mrs. Wells is very organized and knows what she is doing."

Mrs. Wells was very active outside of school activities. She and her husband traveled quite a bit and she did a great deal of sewing. She loved to jog and was taking dancing lessons with her husband. They were in a ballroom dancing class and planned to go on to disco. Watching children grow was like a hobby of hers. "It's interesting to see their different reactions and notice changes as they grow older."

Industrial Ed builds toward equality

A

Girls! Girls! Girls! That's the audience to which the Industrial Education department was playing. Industrial Education's aim was to get as many girls involved as possible. There were approximately 25 girls enrolled in the Industrial Ed classes.

A change that was made in this department was a name change, the name of the Industrial Arts was changed to Industrial Ed because it was not being taught as an art, but as an actual vocational skill.

Industrial Ed offered a wide variety for students including: photography, woodshop, electronics, and drafting. Most students were enrolled in woodshop.

B

"I've been doing wood working all my life. My father was one of those men who could do most anything and I learned alot from him." Lolyd Johnson became a skilled wood worker as a result of his father's influence.

Mr. Johnson did Markerry in his spare time. What is Markerry? Markerry is making a design by the use of inlaid wood. One would use this technique in making a grandfather clock. Mr. Johnson also sold his Markerry works in his spare time.

After Loyld Johnson became retired, he planned to buy a motor home and a trailer and head south, for more than the winter.

In an interview with Mr. Ron Cross, he was asked to describe a humorous incident during his teaching career at South. He replied, "One thing that was really funny that happened in my chemistry class was that I had a demonstration of a chemical reaction in which a solution turned blue when you shook it. I decided I would set this bottle out on the desk at the beginning of the period and then put a sign on it that said 'Do Not Shake'. Then I went in the back room and waited until some student came in that liked to mess around with things on my desk. He looked at that bottle and thought, 'Now, why shouldn't I shake it?'. I waited and waited and pretty soon I came out and there was this student standing there with a red face and the bottle was all blue."

Field trips highlight science year

There was more to science than just doing experiments. Note-taking and test-taking were common in almost all science classes. Results from the experiments were used to form various ideas and theories.

The science department included eleven teachers who taught fifteen classes, covering such subjects as Chemistry, Biology, Flight, and Health Occupations. The science teachers decided to emphasize greater safety in the laboratories. Mr. Bob Tinnell, Department Head, stated, "One of our major thrusts this year is for more safety, particularly in the storing and handling of chemicals and the prevention of accidents and injuries."

Many of the classes went on field trips. The Biology II and Oceanography classes traveled to the coast where they studied marine life. In the spring, the Geology classes took a trip to the Cascades. There, they examined the geological formations of the Cascade Range.

There were also two major contests students could participate in. To enter the Westinghouse Science Talent Search, students, especially seniors, had to complete a project, usually a fairly lengthy one, and write a report on it. In February, the Oregon Junior Academy of Science allowed any student to give a report to a small group of interested people.

New math teachers come to South

Quadratic equations, perpendicular bisectors, logarithms, vectors, and derivatives were very familiar words to many of the students who took math.

There were sixteen different courses offered covering subjects from Basic General Math to Calculus. A strong point in the math department was the Advanced Placement Program. While many classes worked mostly with theory, such as algebra, geometry, elementary functions, and calculus, others showed students the practical uses of mathematics. These included Tech Math I, Tech Math II, and senior Math.

Mr. Mosman headed the math department staff which included eleven teachers. Because of the addition of the freshmen and the opening of McKay, seven of these teachers were new. These were Mr. Applegate, Mr. Enfield, Mr. Fossholm, Mr. McConse, Mrs. McGregor, Mrs. Miller, and Miss Robinson.

Besides classes and homework, there were other things for the math students to do. Ar-Pac tests (Atlantic-Pacific) were given after school once a month. The annual vector tournament, or darts contest, headed by Mr. Applegate, was held in the fall. A highlight of the math year was the National Math Test that provided an excellent challenge to students in all levels of mathematics.

"It is sometimes referred to as the summer session of South High," said Mr. Dick Mosman while talking about Oregon Fruit Canery, of which he is a part owner. "We employ many math teachers, and I would say that about sixty percent of our work force is from South."

When asked what kind of jobs students could get, he replied, "When they start, they are put on the line or various other entry jobs."

Mr. Mosman also raises blueberries. He has close to twelve acres of blueberry bushes which are picked between July and August. The berries are then sent to Oregon Fruit Canery where they are canned.

Counselors say, "Be prepared."

"To help get the students out of school and be prepared for the future." That was the main goal of the counselors, according to Mr. Loren Sr. Lawrence, Department Head. "We have a lot of valuable information, but we can't push it at the kids. They have to come to us."

To assist the students, the counselors had individual conferences, an assembly of the graduating class, a financial aid night, and worked in conjunction with the Guidance Center to offer college visitations. New this year was an advisor program with each teacher involved. During advisor periods the students checked competencies, wrote their schedules, and could look at their transcripts. This was to help them be aware of how they were progressing.

As a whole, the counselors felt their responsibilities were to help with all aspects of the students' everyday lives.

As a counselor Mrs. Peter commented, "I think sometimes we're guilty of putting too much emphasis on college. We'd like to be useful in the daily coping skills of the kids if they need help or just someone to talk to. We're here to assist the process for making decisions instead of telling them what to do."

She closed the conversation saying, "I realize we won't see every student, or even every student who needs help. It's simply not possible in a school this size, but we'd like to think we do help the students we see."

Special Ed teachers run individualized program

A

The Special Education Program was an attempt to help students with special learning disabilities achieve the best possible education.

Special Ed was composed of two distinct programs: the Developmental Learning Center, (DLC), headed by Mrs. Pat Mack, and the Educational Resource Center, (ERC), led by Mrs. Sharon Leopold. Students in the ERC Program had handicaps, but took regular classes along with their one or two ERC classes. The DLC program, on the other hand, was for students with more severe handicaps. These students remained in the DLC classroom for the entire school day. Although there were two basic programs, each student's schedule was based on his individual needs.

Special Ed was run by a completely new staff, with the exception of teaching aide Mrs. Mildred Wright. The basic opinion of the Special Ed Program's significance remained unchanged, however. Mrs. Pat Mack explained, "It's important for the students to learn to live and work with others, so they can survive in the Salem community when they get out of school."

B

Mrs. Mack's first year at South was backed by eight previous years of teaching. She taught Special Ed for six years and English, Health and P.E. prior to that. She also enjoyed coaching numerous sports.

When asked why she decided upon Special Education, Mrs. Mack gave several reasons. "I felt I could offer a lot to kids with handicaps. I have a real concern about handicapped people; they have rights and privileges and I'm concerned that they don't get taken advantage of."

Outside of teaching, Mrs. Mack did a lot of post-graduate counseling. She kept in touch with many ex-students and helped them find jobs and solve other problems.

Social Studies is a major course

A major section in the high school curriculum was Social Studies. History, Citizenship, Personal Finance, Psychology and Sociology were considered important to the education as they taught about various cultures and societies other than American.

Graduation requirements set down by the school district were as follows:

Freshmen and sophomores were each to be enrolled in one semester of U.S. History. As a junior, one was required to take Citizenship, in which students learned about different government procedures. Personal Finance, also required, was designed to instruct students in such things as balancing a checkbook and learning about financing. Seniors had more advanced studies in both of these courses.

An extra semester of Social Studies was required to be taken as either a junior or senior. Various choices offered were Psychology, Sociology, Anthropology, World History, World Geography, and Current Issues and American Personalities.

It was possible for any interested student to take Advanced Placement European History which went into greater depth than the regular history classes. This was the first year such a course had been offered. It was meant to prepare students for college and was available to anyone who wished to gain greater knowledge on this subject.

Hanggliding sounded exciting to Mr. Turman when he was encouraged by a friend to test his skill at the sport. "It was a great experience. It gives you a tremendous sense of freedom flying up in the air." Coming down wasn't as good though. He had a very bad landing which broke his arm and badly injured muscles also located there. Mr. Turman didn't try again. "I don't want to take the chance of hurting myself again."

English Courses Vary

One of the largest and highly stressed areas of study was the English Department. Teachers in this area felt that since the ability to communicate was a basic necessity, it was essential to develop and constantly improve upon English Skills.

Although three full years of English was required, there were many varied classes to choose from. Two basic course studies were followed. Some classes taught fundamental skills while others involved in-depth analysis of literary works. Classes were offered covering such topics as 20th Century Literature, Paragraph Writing, Research Processes, World Literature and Philosophy, and Advanced Placement English.

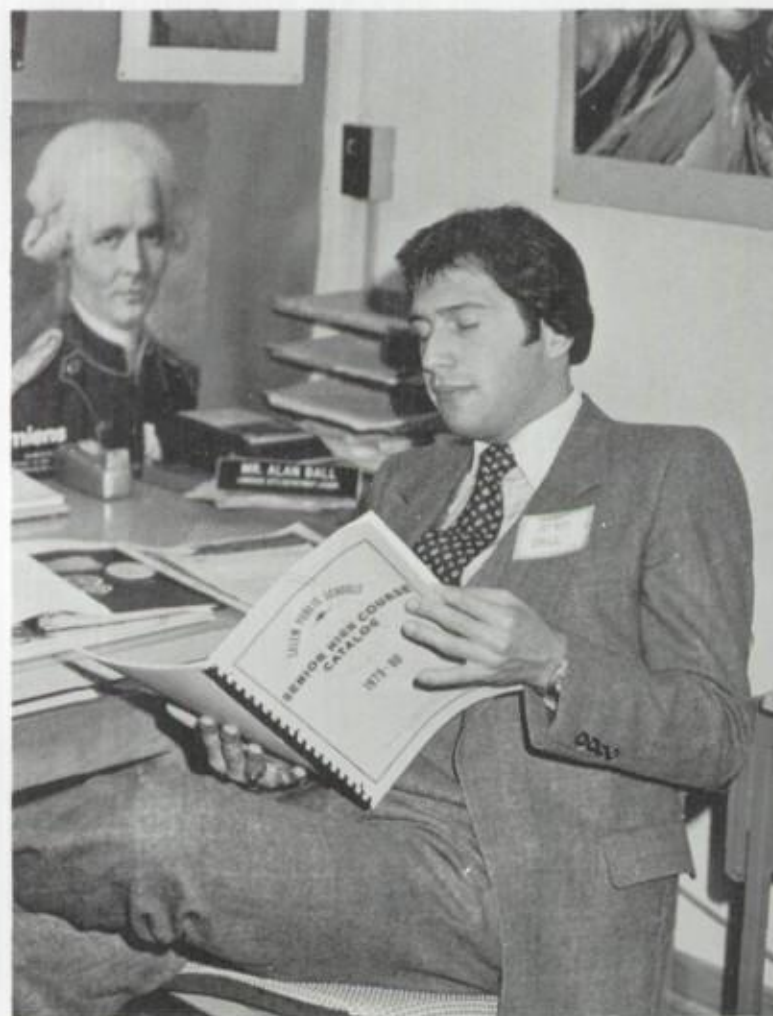

Classes other than standard English classes also gave English credit with permission from the teacher. These classes included Clypian, Journalism, Speech, and Yearbook.

With the addition of the Freshmen, some of the English classes were quite large. Individual needs were sometimes difficult to meet; however, students were encouraged to seek help outside of class time.

Advanced Placement English, taught by Mr. Jim Manuel, was the highest level English class offered at South. The Advanced Placement English Test, taken in May, could yield college credit if passed. With a possibility of five total points, a score of three was needed to pass.

The class was designed to improve skills the students would need for the test. Class time involved careful analysis of novels, drama, and works of poetry. Most students lacked an understanding and appreciation of poetry. To broaden background knowledge, out-of-class reading was required and there were weekly vocabulary tests.

Despite the difficulty of the class, most students enjoyed it and found it to be one of their more interesting classes.

PE department grows to meet needs

The old Physical Education Department didn't change much, but out of all the schools in the district, South's P.E. had the largest enrollment and a large variety of classes. From the variety of classes there were many favorites to choose. One of those classes was Weight Training, traditionally very popular with the boys until an unexpectedly large amount of girls enrolled.

The new Freshman class, however, did cause a couple of changes for the department. A P.E. I class was added to meet their requirements. The class consisted of more fundamentals, with drills, to help improve their skills. Also an additional four teachers were needed. Two were Mr. Larry Hayward and Mr. Terry Ficher, who were switched from Special Ed. Also there was Mr. Chuck Chamberlin and Mr. Scott Cross. Mr. Chamberlin, a graduate of the University of Oregon, taught Health, and Social Studies. Mr. Cross, also a graduate of the U of O, taught Health and P.E.

A graduate of South Salem High School, Mr. Chuck Chamberlin, came back as a teacher. This was Mr. Chamberlin's first year teaching full time. He said, "This is the best place for a new teacher to teach at." He felt that a larger school suited him better than a smaller school, where he had taught his first year.

"I wasn't particularly looking for a Social Studies and Health position, but it was what was being offered," said Mr. Chamberlin. "I find it interesting even though I find that I have to do extra work outside of the class. I also find it interesting to be teaching at my old school. A lot of my old teachers are still here, and being a teacher now, I view them from a different point of view."

The library: a place of learning and leisure

"I feel that the Library is the center of the school, because it complements every other area of study in the school," said Mrs. Aeschleiman. The Library was a place to read, relax, or to do other leisure time activities.

The staff was always helping students with their needs. Mr. Walling, said that he found the students came to him more for an explanation on a topic, and how to find information on it. He mentioned that in doing it, he also tried to teach the students how to do it themselves.

Besides having helped students find information, Mrs. Martin said, "I've also helped students with 'how do's'. They've asked me: How do I make a fiberglass boat, or how do I put on a Christmas Party? But, a lot of times it's just for a good book to read."

"The 'Reminder System' is a sensing device that would cut down on the loss of books, and magazines," said Mr. Wallig. "The system consists of two posts that students walk through. If a student hasn't checked the book or magazine out, a magnetic strip that is hidden in the book will give off a high pitched beep and locks a gate in front of the posts.

"In 1979 approximately 862 books were lost, totaling up to $10,000.00. If the library could get one of these systems it would cut down the loss of books by at least seventy-five percent," said Mr. Wallig.

"We call it the reminder system because, sometimes the students forget to check out the books, or don't want to wait in the lines. Since they don't check them out we have no idea of who has them so there is no way of reminding the person to return them."

Business Department helps students prepare for the future

Although many people thought Business Ed meant learning accounting and secretarial skills, there was much more to the business department. It offered a variety of courses that ranged from Marketing to Business Law. The Business department also provided 'on-the-job' experience, meaning many students actually became employed and had work release through the business program.

One new thing the business department looked for was more male enrollment. Opportunities for male clerical jobs were very promising.

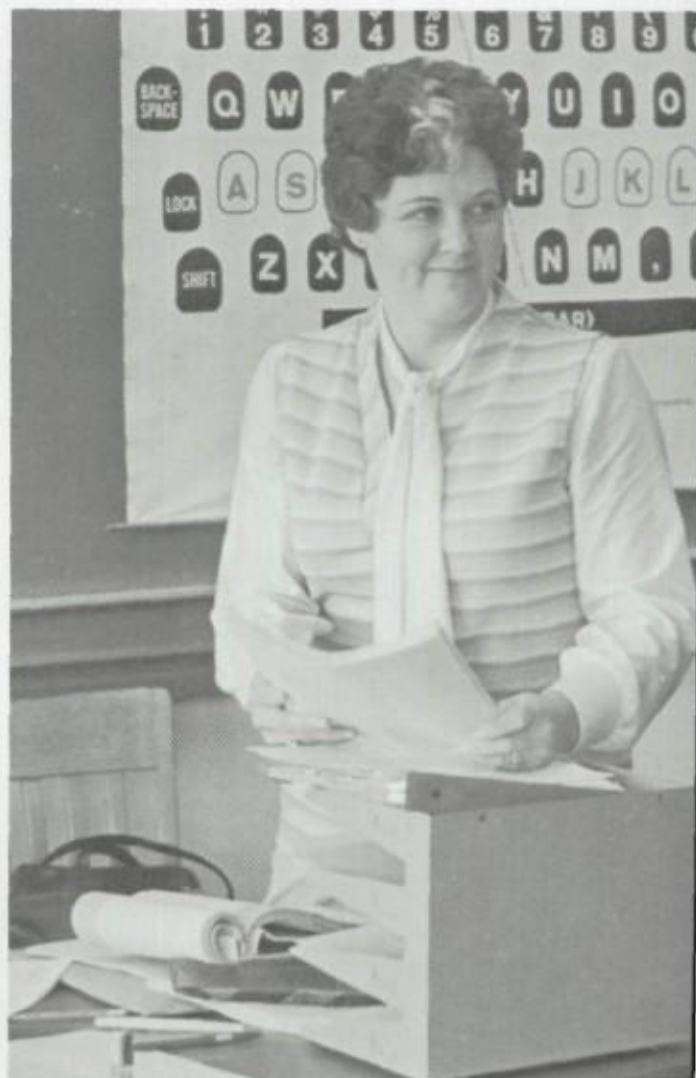

The business department had a wide variety of courses to offer students so that they could benefit both professionally and in their personal lives.

"I'm so good looking, intelligent and modest." This seemed to be Dennis Hamilton's motto. One had to sell himself if he was going to reach marketing students how to sell.

"You have to believe in yourself before you can sell to someone else." This was what Dennis Hamilton stressed in his marketing classes. Mr. Hamilton was not just a teacher, he did much more. He was advisor for the Munch-In, and was in charge of the Saxon chapter of DECA.

When asked what Mr. Hamilton liked best about being advisor and teacher for DECA and marketing, he said, "I like the combination of not only working with kids in the classroom but also working with them on their jobs and preparing them for the future."

Winter Scoreboard

This is the winter scoreboard page. Here are the scores of favorite sporting events. Wrestling has been omitted, due to lack of scores. In every case the scores of South are first, then the opponents. During the winter there were a number of great accomplishments: Boys' and Girls' Swimming went to State, both Varsity Basketball teams went to District, and two of South's Wrestlers went to State. Congratulations were in order for every athlete in every sport participated in.

As a member of the Varsity Boys' Team, Tim Mitchell (known affectionately to his team mates as "Silkma") shared in their loss of a position in the State play-offs. "We all thought we were going to reach it. We got over it though. It meant a lot to us during the season, but we can accept the fact that we did not make it. One reason perhaps for the loss could be in the team's lack of quick plays. Tim explained that, "One main weak point was our fast break. We had none. We really had to work for every basket we got." He thought that some of their major strengths during the season were, "The two big guys," Matt and Paul. The ability to set the tempo of the game was also a strength. Crescent Valley would have probably liked a running game against us. When asked whom he considered the most improved player he chose Sheridan Lehman, "You could really notice the way he controlled the ball and brought it up the court."

...and face many challenges

From the beginning of the season, the Varsity basketball team had their work cut out for them. Facing the expectation of their fans and the goals they set for themselves was quite a challenge. In the words of Coach Cantonwine, "It was a pretty good season, a heck of a good season," even though some major goals were not realized. But the list of their achievements was extensive: The accumulation of 14 league game victories, gaining the second position in the valley league's final standings, being ranked fourth in the Associated Press State-rankings, the defeat of the then top-ten ranked Corvallis Spartans by a margin of nine points, and the list went on, including the individual accomplishments of each player toward the team.

Even though the team lost only four games in the entire season, and these losses were minor point wise, the mistakes made were just enough to upser their success. Loss of concentration during the last minutes of play was a primary cause of defeat. This lack of intensity combined with the habit of playing to the ability of the comperition—no further—spelled defeat.

Although the team did not meet some of the expectations that their fans predicted, they did accomplish quire a bit during the course of their season.

JV Saxons have trying season

"In Junior Varsity basketball our goal was to produce a successful varsity team. We put players up as high as possible and stressed fundamentals," commented first year J.V. Coach Gary Snow. "As the season went on we became a more patient team." The team's final record was 6-16. All of the wins were in league play and most of them came later in the season.

There were two Freshmen on the team: Jeff Reibel and Kraig Kerr. Both Jeff and Kraig saw a lot of playing time. According to Snow, "Kraig Kerr was probably the player that improved most over the season."

Aaron Thomas, a sophomore, led the team in scoring with a final total of 152 and an 8.4 point per game average. Chris Simmons was the second highest in scoring with 146 points. Chris was also the team's leading rebounder. He pulled down a total of 131 rebounds with a game average of 8.1.

Coach Snow said of his team, "...they were a good group of people to work with. That always makes the season more enjoyable."

Bill Gallagher was undoubtedly the most accident-prone member of the Junior Varsity basketball team. In the four previous years he had a broken ankle, a broken thumb, and an injured back. All of these injuries happened near or during the basketball season and effected Bill's playing.

At the beginning of the 1979-1980 season Bill suffered a gunshot wound in an accident. "I was in the hospital for a while, and missed the first five games of the season. It was hard for me to get back into shape after missing the first few games. I didn't feel as much a part of the team as I would have otherwise. And I didn't play as much as I probably could have. That improved as the season went on. It was really great coming back from the hospital and getting to play."

Sophomores start with the basics

With a new coach and a new group of players, the Sophomore Boys' Basketball team had a lot of goals. They were to learn and execute the basic fundamentals of passing, shooting, and team defense. "The players understand that the foundation has to be set for the years to come," stated Coach Scott Cross.

The team's major weak point was being mentally ready to play away from home. "We almost always played well at home, but never really were very intense away," commented Coach Cross.

The team's toughest competition came from Sprague and West Albany. "We played both of these teams tough in all four contests, but lost by a small margin of points," said Cross.

"It was a good season. The players worked hard and were very coachable as a whole. We improved greatly on team defense and rebounding. Not a practice went by that we didn't work on these skills," Cross stated.

A

Already playing for 8 years in different clubs, Brian Heater was still improving on his skills. "A few physical parts I improved on were, my aggressiveness—I had the most fouls—my shots, and especially my coordination," stated Brian. Brian also improved on mental aspects, such as team work, tempo, calmness, and being friends with his teammates.

The Freshmen basketball schedule was set-up so that the team played their regular season in an inter-city league. They played each Salem team three times and came away with nine wins and three losses. The win-lose record put them on top in this inter-city rivalry. Coach Mike Stortz was pleased with winning the city league basketball, though he said he would have liked to play more out-of-town teams. The team ended the season with an over-all record of 12 wins and seven losses.

"We will have some good ballplayers coming up in the next few years from this Freshmen squad," said Coach Stortz. "They matured rather well. We had some individuals come on strong at the end of the season. I was also pleased with the support of the people who came to the games," said Mr. Stortz. "The parental support was really good."

Eric Scofield has been playing organized basketball for more than four years. He started out at the YMCA and then went on to Leslie Jr. High where he played J.V. ball. At South he played on the Freshmen squad as both guard and forward. Eric averaged better than 6.5 points a game for the Saxons. Eric thought his support for the team varied from game to game and that he and the rest of the team had improved greatly over the season.

Grapplers have frustrating season

The 1979-1980 Saxon wrestlers had a frustrating season due to the lack of previous varsity experience. The young team had only three seniors: Team Captain Mark Nuss, Randy Brammer, and Mike Cary. All three contributed greatly to the team through their leadership and experience.

According to Coach Larry Hayward, "The season was difficult for us because the competition was so rough with a young team. Wrestling is a grueling sport. In order to be successful you've got to have experience. The experience gained by the year's sophomores and juniors will be valuable in future years."

Drew Smerana was the district champion in the heavyweight division. Along with Drew, Coach Hayward felt several other juniors, sophomores, and freshmen from the team had the potential to become outstanding wrestlers.

Team captain Mark Nuss has been wrestling for four years. According to Mark, "My ninth grade football coach suggested I try wrestling, so I did." Mark continued to go out for wrestling throughout his high school years. "I enjoy compering," says Mark, "especially the comperition on a 'one-to-one' basis. Wrestling involves a lot of hard work and dedication. It makes me think twice about going out the next time, but once I'm out it's great. Wrestling gives you self-pride and makes you feel better about yourself physically. It was good to go home and rest after wrestling season was over," says Mark, "but I think I'm going to miss it."

Swim Teams finish out on top

"Go...Go...Go...Go!" was the encouraging yell from many of the members of South Salem's Swim Team. Both the girls' and the boys' teams had an excellent season from start to finish, placing very high in overall competition.

The boys' team, coached by Mr. John Turman, captured the District Title for the third year in a row, and placed first in overall and league competition with a combined record of ten wins and one loss. At the state meet, held at Corvallis' New Aquatic Center, the boys placed 10th in the 200 Medley Relay, 13th and 19th in the 200 Freestyle, 10th in the 100 Butterfly, 2nd and 11th in the 100 Freestyle, 19th in the 100 Backstroke, 4th in the 200IM, 14th in the 100 Breaststroke, and 5th in the 400 Freestyle Relay.

The girls' team, coached by Miss Terri Robinson, came 13 points short of the District Title and had to settle for second place behind Lebanon. Their league record was five wins and one loss, with an overall record of seven wins and three losses. In the state meet, also held at Corvallis, the girls placed 11th in the 200 Medley Relay, and 10th in the 500 Freestyle by Maggie Simmons, a Sophomore.

Coach Robinson was really pleased with the girls' performances. "It was an interesting situation because 13 of the 19 girls on the team had swam on Leslie Junior High's swim team for me. It was a real privilege to work with them again."

Coach Turman was very happy with the outcome of the boys' season. His first feelings before the season were an eager anticipation of working with the boys and to have a successful season. "As far as improvements," said Coach Turman, "we improved very much due to the excellent preparation for District and State."

Girls' team plagued with injuries . . .

Girls' Basketball seemed to have a curse on it. For the past three years the Varsity team had been plagued with injuries and illnesses. This year was no exception. For over half their games, the team was missing two or more starters. Only three players were available every game of the season, and only one of those played in every game. "If we would have had people there to play together for two or more weeks at a time, we would have done better," said Coach Lou DeLoretto. "After sickness or an injury it took a player two weeks to get back into it. All injuries decreased our chances of going to state," said Jan Werherbee, high scorer of the team with a 236 point total. "It seemed when we got one person back, there would be another player sick or hurt."

Except for the absences, the team had a good season, compiling a season record of 16 wins and seven losses and in league play, 13 wins and five losses. They qualified for district playoffs but were beaten by North Salem in a tough game played at South. Playing a total of 23 games, the Saxon team had a point total of 1023, out-scoring opponents by an average score of 5.2.

What do you do when you play basketball, you're a senior, and you're on the injured reserve list for the whole season? This was Kim Cantonwine's problem. The injury to her knee might not have hurt so much if she loved basketball less. Kim had been playing basketball since as early as she could remember, but this was the year, as she said, "that I started to get serious. I really wanted to prove myself and I never got the chance to. It was a let down to be sitting on the bench," she said. "I wanted to be All-State."

Kim had surgery on her knee, removal of the cartilage, and played golf for her last sport as a senior.

JV Girls start over after a years absense

Having injuries and sicknesses seemed to be a tradition this year for girls' basketball. The J.V. team had its share of these to put up with throughout the season.

Mr. Olson, coach of the team, felt good about the season. "I felt the season was good. Considering there was no J.V. team last year, we had an excellent team. A team needs someone who has played at that level returning to provide leadership and direction for the new players. We started with no one with that experience. The only experience we had was Jr. High or none."

Helping the girls improve their basic skills so that they would be ready for Varsity competition in future years was Mr. Olson's goal for the year.

The team's major weak point was shooting. Having an inexperienced team was a factor for this. The strong points were: ability to handle the press and working together as a team.

A

Asking Lisa Barber how High School Basketball is different than Jr. High, she replied, "There is more competition and there is more skill involved instead of luck."

Lisa feels her game has improved tremendously, along with having fun, to accomplish her goals.

In spite of playing since 6th grade, and intending to continue throughout high school, Lisa doesn't feel she will go anywhere with basketball.

Freshmen Girls' Basketball proves to be popular

For a first year team at a high school, South's Freshmen Girls' Basketball team came out with a very progressive season. Their league record was six wins and seven losses, and an overall record of seven wins and nine losses.

The coach for the team, Mr. Chuck Chamberlain, was very patient with the group of girls. "It was a new season," said Coach Chamberlain, "with a group of girls that had very little experience. I realized that patience would have to play a key role in the development of each player."

He was asked who was the most outstanding individual and replied by saying, "There was no outstanding player to the effect. Each was good according to her own ability. If a player competed to her fullest potential, then they were outstanding. These girls have two to three years before full potential will be reached."

He said that the result of the team record really had no good indication of the skill, competitiveness, or hard work the team had accomplished throughout the season. He added that the whole team improved, but those who worked the hardest definitely improved the most. The team learned from this the concept of devotion and discipline.

Tina Karo expresses a few thoughts about the team and the season. "Being on the team has been a lot of fun. At first the team was just learning the basics, since some girls didn't know much about the skills and rules of the game. We learned a lot about teamwork and skills, mainly defense. The team worked well together with some flaws. Coach Chamberlain was an outstanding and patient coach, and was always encouraging us. We had a good season and had lots of fun on the team."

What a Sweetheart!

What was the image of the South Salem Sweetheart? It was someone who was involved in school activities, spirited, and well-liked. The Sweethearts were not only female, but for the second consecutive year male, also. These were: Dave Centers, Rob Edminston, George Long, Mike Lee, and Robert Cary. The girls were: Sara Paterson, Kelly McGehey, Laurie Scheacher, Liza Taylor, Laurie Ilg, Terri Strang and Jessica Stradtmann. The Sweethearts were honored at the football and basketball games. At the final league basketball game all the Sweethearts were presented to the student-body. Sara Paterson was crowned Sweetheart of the Year, chosen by the student body and faculty. Sara stated, "I was surprised and very happy because it was a special honor to win."

Robert Cary was chosen as a South Salem High Sweetheart during basketball season. When asked how it felt to be a male "sweetheart" Robert said, "It's an honor, but I don't feel it should be called sweetheart because I feel it's not a neutral enough title." When Robert was told he was sweetheart he felt honored and surprised. Being a sweetheart has a certain image to uphold, but Robert feels that "you get the honor from being the person that you are so there is no reason to try to uphold any image." Robert also says, "the image one should have to be chosen a sweetheart is someone who is active in school activities, someone who's a leader."

Dreams of a moonlight stroll

The cool, misty, night air was filled with a sense of excitement and romance on December 8, 1979. This was the evening of the 26TH Annual SnoBall, held inside the 4-H Building at the fairgrounds.

Upon entering, students could hear the stimulating sounds of the group "Srratus", who entertained with their music. Decorations were displayed in the theme colors, silver and black. Refreshments were provided, which consisted of various pies, cakes and soda pop. It was also possible for each couple to have their picture taken for a keepsake.

All of this would not have been possible if it weren't for Donna Burts, YWCA Teen Director, and the twenty representatives from the six Salem high schools. It took a lot of hard work and determination to put together this formal dance. They chose the theme, colors, decorations, the design of the tickets, the group to perform, and many other important details.

The representatives from South included Senior Anne McAree, Committee Chairperson, Junior Maile Scanlan, Sophomore Wyatt Karo, and Freshman Susan Abbott.

Sophomore Jill Jacox, was among the many who took part in the SnoBall. It was the first Jill had been to and she had much to say about it. "I really liked the decorations. The band was good too, although there could have been more slow songs. It got kind of boring at times because there wasn't really that much to do, but as a whole, the evening was lots of fun!"

'Funny Girl' provides good entertainment

"Funny Girl", the musical presented by the drama department is the true story of Fanny Brice's struggle to become a successful Broadway star. Karen Sexson portrayed Fanny Brice, and Curt Arthur played Nick Arnstein, a gambling man who eventually married Fanny. Patty Keane portrayed Mrs. Brice, Fanny's mother, and Jaime Garza played Eddie Ryan, a stage director and friend of Fanny's. When asked why she chose "Funny Girl", Mrs. Phyllis Quanbeck, one of the directors of the play, said, "because I thought we had the talent for it this year."

Mr. Mike Crawford also helped direct the play, and Jerry Jones was the student director. Mr. Bob Brainard was the technical director, and Mr. Dave Becker led the Orchestra.

The first act of "Funny Girl" consisted of fourteen scenes which included the songs "I'm the Greatest Star" and "People". Nine scenes made up the second act along with such songs as "Rar-tat-tat-tat" and "Don't Rain on My Parade".

"This is one of the only things at South where so many kids have to take an adult responsibility," said Mrs. Quanbeck. "I was very proud of them."

When asked if she was thinking of going into acting as a profession, Patty Keane replied, "Yes, I just love it." She started acting in fourth grade and since then has performed in school plays as well as plays open to the community. She hopes to get a job working in the children's theatre at the Enchanted Forest this summer.

"My sisters were in plays. Ever since I saw them, I just wanted to get involved." When asked what she would always remember about "Funny Girl", she said, "What a great feeling I had opening night. We worked so hard and finally got to do it."

National Honor Society plans various activities

As a selective organization, the National Honor Society based membership on academic achievement with a G.P.A. near 3.4 or above. In the spring, juniors and seniors applied for admission and were selected by a committee, headed by Mr. Jim Manuel.

Although the purpose of the National Honor Society was mainly to honor academic excellence, members participated in several activities. The National Honor Society members acted as guides for the fall open house, held an exciting gourmet potluck at the Valach's, and a cookie social was held in May to honor the newly chosen members.

Club officers included: President Diane Valach, Vice-President Steve Henderlite, Secretary Carol Lisensky, and Treasurer Talli Osborne.

At graduation, seniors in the National Honor Society were recognized by the gold tassels which they wore along with their traditional blue white and red tassels.

Speech Team travels

Trophies were brought back from all over the state and completely filled the Speech Team trophy case. In order to win the trophies, members of the Speech Team travelled to tournaments at most of the major college campuses in the state, as well as other high schools. In November, Joni Whitmore and Bergitta Trelstad went to Chicago to compete in a national debate tournament. In February, ten members were selected to give their speeches at a tournament in Berkely, California.

To raise money for the tournaments, the Speech Team operated a concession stand at all home football games. They also hosted a tournament for other high school teams during October.

"We did very well in debate, extemp, impromptu, oratory, and interp," said Mr. Bob Withycombe, speech coach. When asked what he liked about the Speech Team, Mr. Withycombe replied, "They're fun, interesting, talented, and hard working."

"My favorite events are debate, extemp, and impromptu. Debate is one of the most challenging events because one must be able to defend both sides of an issue, as well as think, reason, and persuade logically.

Bergitta has done much travelling this year. She has attended tournaments at OSU, OCE, Berkeley in California, and Chicago. She also went to District, State, and National Forensics League tournaments.

Student government's goal is organization and . . .

In trying to organize a well run student council, President Eric Miller felt there was a need for consistency and better communication. Goals were established for all committees and student government as a whole. It was also decided that records of all committee meetings, student council meetings, and project reports would be compiled in notebooks that would be passed on to the committee chairpeople of the following years. Organization was brought to student council by having the Executive Committee (President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Committee Chairpeople) meet once a week to discuss issues on the agenda.

Each committee was kept busy with various activities. Liaison Committee conducted a neighborhood survey to interest the public in South's affairs and to question them concerning the open lunch policy. Finance and Fund Raising Committee was in charge of financial supervision, budgets, selling homecoming Mums, and the U.G.N. Project. Activities Committee planned events such as Spirit Week, Activity Periods, Sadie Hawkins Day, and Spring Day. Building and Grounds worked on getting a wooden sign for the school by selling "Saxon" suspenders.

To equalize the voice of the classes in student government, four separate class committees were created. Each class committee was responsible for activities concerning only their grade.

ASB benefits the school in several ways." was the opinion of Talli Osborne, a member of the Sr. Committee. "The activities planned and carried out by the students are open to everyone." She also felt that ASB helped improve relations between the school and the community.

From her personal involvement, Talli found that, "Student Government is an interesting way to meet people and learn to work with others."

FBLA is successful

Future Business Leaders of America consisted of students enrolled in a business class and who had an interest in business as their future career. Participants in this organization could further develop their skills through competitions held at district, state and national levels. Brenda Witham, Mary Herrie and Tammy Kinz all placed first at district and several students went to state competition.

Various fund raising activities were held throughout the year including bake sales, car washes and selling Saxon hats and scarves. These provided funds which helped pay for students going to competitions.

Scott Lantz, President of FBLA, felt the year was quite successful although they did have a slow start. "I feel that the FBLA Chapter has made some neat changes. We created more publicity to increase membership in our Chapter. We had a large group and did many things. Going to district was fun and we were one of the best there. I was glad to see so many make it to state!"

Culture is important in Language Clubs

"I believe that the purpose of Language Clubs is to educate students so that they are aware of other countries and their cultures." This statement by Mike Montgomery (member of both French and Spanish Clubs) illustrated a goal of the French, German and Spanish Clubs. This goal was accomplished by participating in activities such as dinners where food was served from their respective countries. Primarily, bake sales were held to support those activities. Food was sold which represented different countries. Toward the end of the year, the traditional soccer tournament between the clubs was held. A dessert benefit was planned and sponsored by the combination of all the language clubs in which anyone was welcome to participate, including parents.

Saxon Band trains

A

Saxon Band was one of the new bands made up of sophomores and freshmen. They had five performances: Fall Pops, Christmas, Spring Concert, Winter Instrumental, and Graduation Ceremonies. Several of the students took part in the district Solo and Ensemble Competition.

Advisor, Mr. Becker, said that Saxon Band was primarily a training class. They had the chance to travel to one competition, but they decided not to go. "We were more interested in learning, than getting trophies."

Garen plans to go to the University of Southern California to continue his studies in music. He said, "I plan to major in music, and I'd like to play in a symphony or a jazz band."

9th and 10th grade stage band begins

This year another new edition to the music department was the ninth and tenth grade stage band. This group consisted of sixteen sophomore and freshman students. There were six extra members, mostly juniors, who were not in the actual class, but rehearsed and played with the group in their performances. The band's music consisted mainly of jazz and rock numbers. Their performances included the OCE Jazz Festival and the Salem Jazz Festival. They also played in several school concerts.

Members of the band were also required to have another band class in their schedules. Basically, the ninth and tenth grade stage band was a skills class in which students improved individually and prepared themselves for membership in Jazz Ensemble. Mr. Dave Becker, band director, predicted, "We should see a huge increase in the individual ability of our jazz players in the future because of this class."

An early interest in music inspired Freshman Andy Barbera to join the ninth and tenth grade stage band.

When asked why he entered stage band Andy replied, "I've always liked contemporary music and I really like the music stage band plays."

Andy began his musical interest at Leslie Jr. High School, where he was in the beginning stage band class.

At South, Andy played the lead jazz and classical guitar. He hoped to be in Jazz Ensemble later and continue his interest for music throughout high school and into college.

California: Here they come!

"They're the best group of kids I've ever worked with. It's been a great year," said Mr. Dave Becker, director of the Concert Band. Mr. Becker was assisted by Brian Case, president of the band, and Joan Fowler, vice-president. Glenn Kostur acted as the pep band director.

The Concert Band was involved in many activities. They sold mugs and candy. In November and December the band sold boxes of grapefruit and oranges as well.

Besides playing at several South concerts throughout the year, they also marched during half-time at home football games. In March the Concert Band participated in the Shoreline Invitational Band Festival held in Seattle, Washington. They were one of three schools representing Oregon. The band finished in fourth place after competing against seventeen other high schools.

The highlight of the year was the Disneyland Tour. In April the band travelled to many parts of Southern California. They returned with a silver medal from this international festival.

Glenn Kostur was a member of Saxon Band, Concert Band, Jazz Ensemble, Stage Band, and Orchestra. He was a member of the musical pit orchestra, the 1980 All-State Band, and Salem Junior Symphony. "In addition to the saxophone, I work a little on flute and clarinet. Basically, woodwind instruments are very similar." Glenn attended both the Shoreline Band Festival and the Disneyland Tour.

"It allows both the demonstration of any technical ability you may have in playing an instrument as well as allowing freedom of interpretation and imagination," he responded when asked why he would recommend that someone join a band. "It's nice to be able to travel with a group which has one common interest."

"Impressive" describes Jazz Ensemble

Consistent high scores were typical of South's Jazz Ensemble, directed by Mr. Becker. This stage band consisted of twenty highly select eleventh and twelfth graders, who obtained their membership through an audition.

Among the awards they won were: first at the Salem Jazz Festival, third at Clark College in Vancouver, Washington, and they received the highest scores and a standing ovation from the judges at the OCE Jazz Festival. Jazz Ensemble was one of the top bands at the Shoreline Invitational Band Festival in Seattle. They also took a spring tour through San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Performing at school concerts, during lunch, and at various places in Salem, was common to the group. Students who received outstanding soloist awards included Glen Kostur, Craig Bender, and Dean Castronovo.

B

Playing lead trumpeter in Jazz Ensemble was a good experience according to Junior Randy Reason. This was Randy's second year of stage band and he considered it an enjoyable activity. "We work together and really try hard. Of course working hard isn't everything. A good director is essential to any fine group. Mr. Becker is an excellent director and is the main reason that we're one of the top bands in the state."

Orchestra members perform at concerts, musical, and All-State

A

Under the direction of Mr. Peter Frajola, the Orchestra played at the Fall, Christmas, and Mid-winter concerts. The Sprague Orchestra occasionally accompanied them. Outstanding members selected to play in the musical, "Funny Girl", were Corinne Hambourg, Brian Coons, David Sreele, John Mitron, and Julia Rickard. All-State Orchestra also included members from South's Orchestra class. After try-outs, Corinne and Tanya Hambourg found they had both been chosen to perform at All-State.

Mr. Frajola also taught Orchestra at Sprague High School, Judson Middle School, and Salem Elementary Schools. When asked what was unique about Orchestra, he replied, "It requires such a long time for students to become proficient. A string instrument is very difficult to become a good player with."

Although this is her first year at South, Jean Posekany has been playing the violin for four years. She also enjoys playing the piano.

Jean has played with the Orchestra at all the South concerts and one Sprague concert. She also went with the Orchestra to perform in Smith Auditorium at Willamette University along with five other high schools.

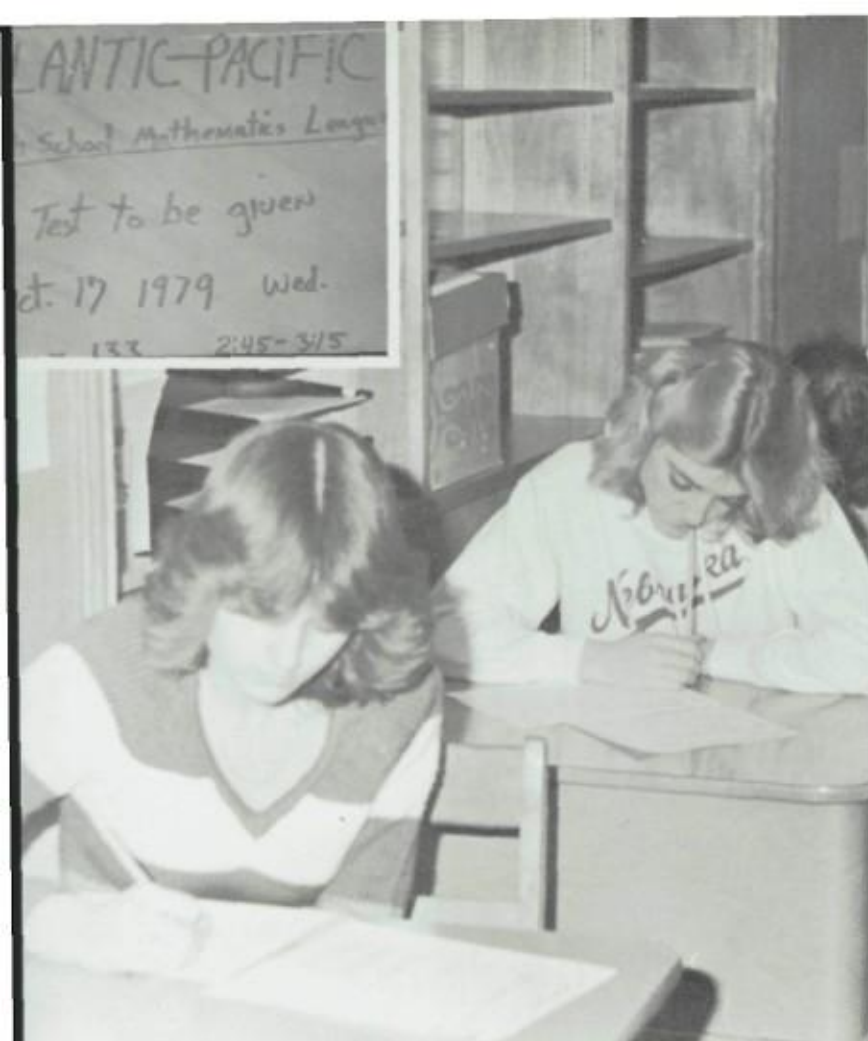

"I like playing the violin with other people. You learn how to play in front of people, and you are also more aware of what you need to practice."

Math Club becomes functional

The Math Club was "reactivated" in January, after a year of inactivity. At their first meeting, a constitution was approved which required that members had to be enrolled in a math class and that they had to have taken at least one AT-PAC Test.

The stated purpose of the Math Club was to encourage participation in both the AT-PAC and National Math tests. Noon programs were held to discuss problems on the tests and practice sessions were held for the National Math Test.

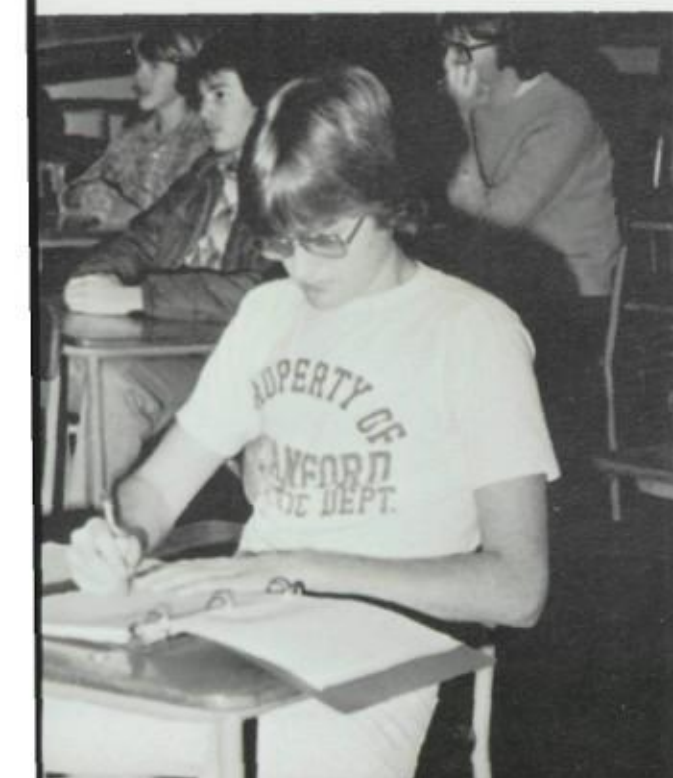

Other club activities included a trip to the OSU Computer Science Center and a "Math Awareness Week". During the week various "fun" activities were scheduled to show support for the Mathletic Department.

Club officers were: John Reuling, President; Rod Noreboom, Vice-President; Matt Knox Secretary-Treasurer; and Talli Osborn, Sergeant-at-Arms.

Clypian staff works hard to meet deadlines

Meeting deadlines was a major challenge for members of the Clypian staff. Every three weeks a new issue of South's student newspaper was published and distributed to the student body and faculty. This could not have happened if it weren't for eighteen dedicated students who wrote stories, designed page layouts and sold advertising to local businessmen.

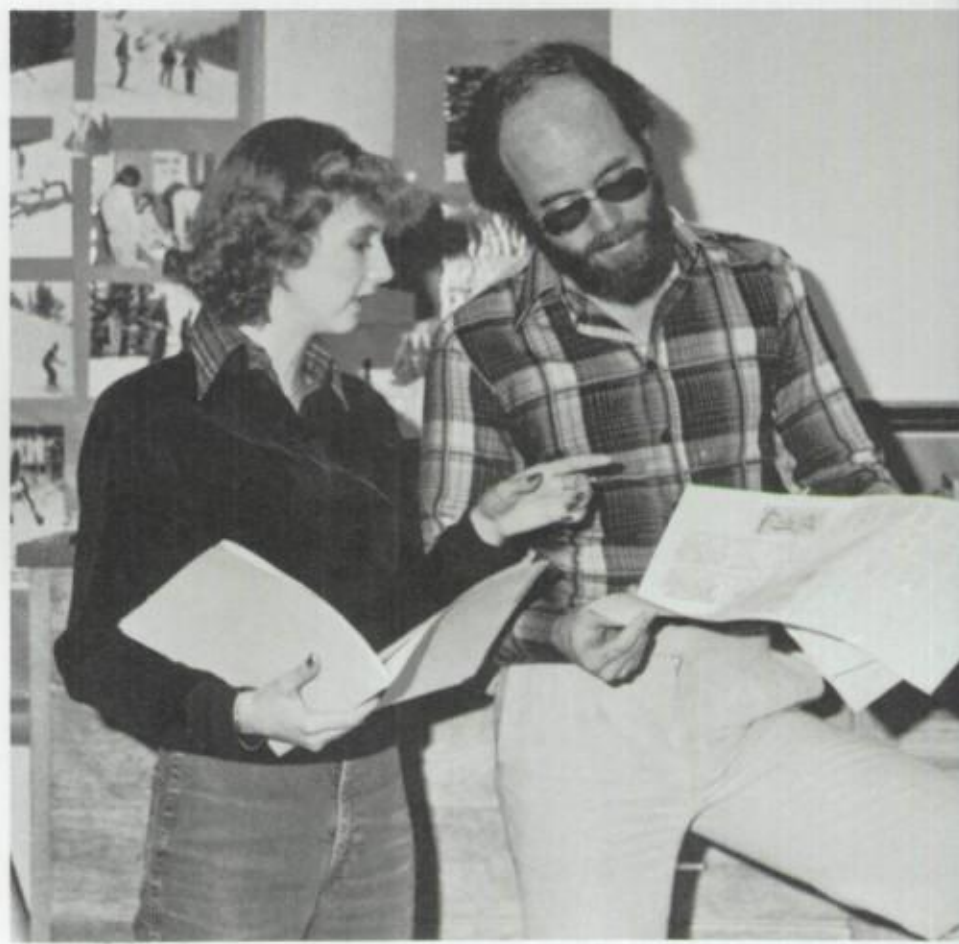

Articles ranged from gossip columns and record reviews to the more serious government issues and common teenage problems. Each issue also contained various cartoons drawn by skilled students. Junior Carrie McMillan found being on the staff a great experience. "I learned a lot about working with other people and working under pressure. There were a lot of interesting people on the staff and I was glad to be a part of it."

As Editor of the Clypian, Susan Wechrer had many responsibilities. She organized each issue and made sure all the deadlines were met. "It's a lot of work and, of course, there is pressure, but if you want the responsibility of editor you have to put up with everything, good or bad. It was a great learning experience and it gave me more of an idea of what I plan to major in, journalism. I thought our staff had a lot of quality. We had a group of hard-working and willing students who all took part in the paper."

Yearbook Staff captures new Dimension

Mr. Dean Barr and Mr. John Crisalli were the advisors of the 1980 Sword & Shield Staff. The staff was split into four main parts, still they worked well together. There was the sports staff with Lisa Wipf as editor; the activities staff with Toni Kramer as editor; the photography staff with Tina Ordinez as head photographer; and John Honey was editor of the business staff. Colleen Benson was the Editor-in-Chief with Jessica Stradmann as her assistant.

Getting pictures taken, writing copy, and laying out pages remained the job of the staff. The main change was the addition of interviews. Editor Colleen Benson said, "I wanted the book to be more personalized and to get different points of view from many students and teachers." Agreeing with the idea, Mr. Barr said, "The interviews are a really great idea. Colleen deserves a lot of credit."

Sword & Shield Sports Editor was Junior Lisa Wipf. One of the reasons Lisa was chosen for her position was because she was involved in sports herself. She was on the varsities of both basketball and softball, and on J.V. volleyball.

This was Lisa's third year on yearbook staffs: two at South High and one at Parrish Junior High (as Editor). She became a member of Quill & Scroll, yet had no real plans for any type of journalistic aspirations. "I joined the staff because it was a part of the school activity, putting the history of the school together in book form."

A new club erupts from the Science Department

Beginning its first year at South, the South Salem Science Society attracted many members. This group was organized to provide activities and information to students interested in the sciences.

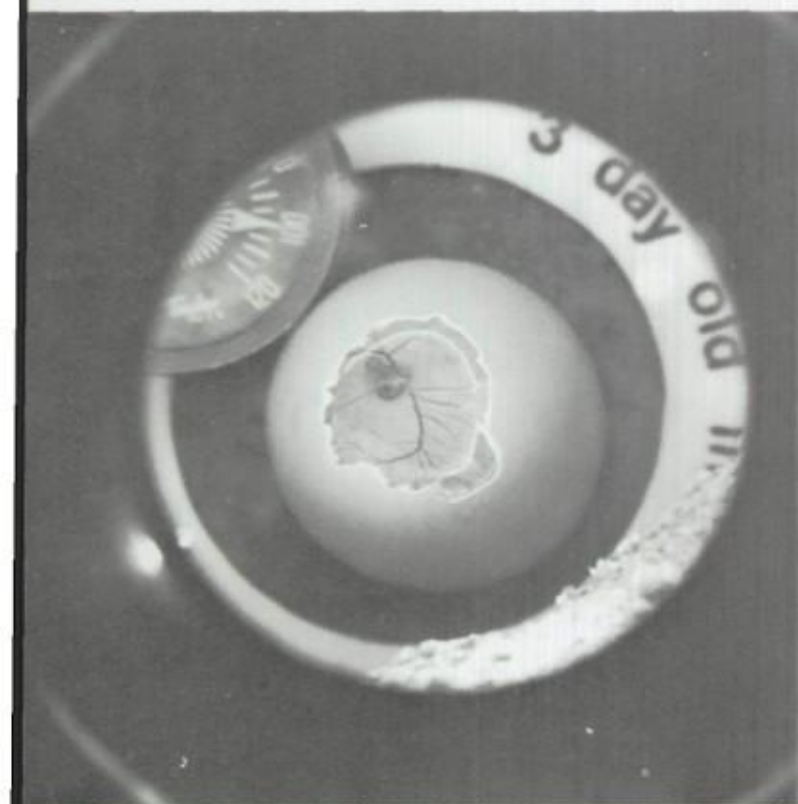

In maintaining the society, Mr. Bob Tinnell, club advisor, was assisted by the club officers. Elected club officers were: Dan Quidbach, President; John Reuling, Vice-President; Brett Hunsaker, Secretary; Rod Noreboom, Treasurer; and Dan Cohen, Sergeant-at-Arms.

At meetings members listened to guest speakers (on code 27-blue days), worked on a project, or discussed events related to science. To help pay for use of laboratory equipment or other needs, dollar dues were collected from each member. One speaker, Dr. Guy Rooth, from the Oregon College of Education spoke about the activity of Mt. St. Helens. Professor Rooth elaborated on the probability of eruption, mud flows, and possible problems that may have been caused by an eruption in the Cascades. For an individual project, students were able to examine micro-fossils. The Society also took a trip to the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry in Portland.

Dan Quidbach stated that the long term goal of the club was "to encourage and help students enter science projects in state and possibly national competitions."

DECA opens opportunities for marketing students

A

Distributive Education Clubs of America, DECA, was a "club geared around students that have an interest in marketing, merchandising, and management," said DECA advisor Mr. Dennis Hamilton. In order to join DECA, a student had to be enrolled in a marketing class.

The president of DECA was Mike Buchard, with David Coronel as vice-president, and Lori Finn as treasurer.

DECA members were involved in several activities. They operated the school store, The Munch-Inn, which sold cold drinks, candy, and school supplies. In November, several DECA members traveled to Salt Lake City, Utah to attend a Western Regional Leadership Conference. At the conference, they worked on leadership skills. A State Leadership Conference was held during March in Portland. South students competed for trophies in market related areas. Students were encouraged to compete in the state competition in order to travel to the National Leadership Conference which was held in Miami, Florida.

"DECA is so much fun and it opens so many opportunities for your life," said Lori Finn, who has been in DECA for two years. She feels that she will definitely go into a marketing profession, possibly the retail business.

When asked what she has gained by being in DECA, she responded, "I've learned how to conduct myself better with people, and I've learned a lot about marketing. I've enjoyed the competitions and meeting people from all over the western states. I'll always remember the fun I had, especially at the state competitions and the other trips we went on."

AFS is walking together, talking together as one world.

Raising money in order to have a foreign student at South and finding families who would be willing to take in the student were the two major goals of the American Field Service International Club.

The two students from South who hoped to travel through AFS were Marshal McReal and Debbie Pavelek. Debbie applied for the Southern Hemisphere while Marshal chose the Northern Hemisphere.

Although there was no AFS foreign student at South, the club was busy with other foreign students from Austria, Taiwan, the Philippines, Brazil, Vietnam, Laos, and other countries.

Mrs. Judy Martin, the club's faculty advisor, stated, "We have provided friendship and orientation for our foreign students, getting to know each other at casual meetings in homes, going to movies, skating, etc. During Halloween we had a dress up party and went trick-or-treating. South's foreign students learned how to bob for apples and how to carve a pumpkin."

During AFS week in March, South students hosted many foreign exchange students staying with host families in the Salem vicinity. The students attended classes and many activities, such as an ice-cream party with their hosts.

As the AFS motto says, "AFS is talking together, walking together as one world."

The AFS International Club had a special meaning for Mary Ann Fera. Mary Ann was an exchange student from the Philippines, who traveled through the Rotary Exchange Program. Although she was not an AFS sponsored exchange student, she was invited to join the AFS Club.

"Foreign students don't know many people when they first come, so they need somebody to help them adjust," stated Mary Ann. The AFS Club consisted of only six members in the beginning, and these people helped Mary Ann meet other students and become involved in South.

Mary Ann enjoyed taking part in the activities planned by the AFS Club, such as the AFS Dessert and attending the twice monthly meetings. She stated "I enjoyed talking at the meetings and being a member of a small group."

Thespians show the world is a stage

A

All the world is said to be a stage, and the National Thespian Society honored high school students who acted under the lights.

South's chapter of the Thespian Society consisted of twenty-five to thirty students. These were the students who were highly dedicated to the drama department. To become a Thespian, each student must have earned ten points. Each point stood for work in drama production (cast or crew).

Thespian officers were: President Parry Keane, Vice-President Wes Ballard, Secretary Kelly Timm, Costume Chairman Liza Taylor, Activities Chairman Karen Sexson, Treasurer Jerry Jones, and Points Chairman Marshall McReal.

B

Thespian Vice-President Wesley Ballard feels that drama is an excellent way to learn what life is all about. Wes said, "Responsibility is a key factor in drama and in life."

Wes has been involved in drama since the sixth grade, and wished he had started sooner. "At first it was just a class project, then it turned into more or less of an obsession." Wes is not sure of his career plans, but he said whatever it was, in one way or another, it will probably be related to drama.

Art Club members get involved

One didn't have to be a great virtuoso to be in the art club, but it helped to be involved. Mrs. Poole, the art club advisor said, "It was a good year. We really did a lot." One of the highlights of the busy year was South Salem High's First Annual Art Show and Contest. First Place awards were given for the two and three dimensional categories, along with the Best of Show award and many honorable mentions.

Art Club members were involved in many activities and classes during the year. They were involved in Fine Arts Week making air-brushed tee-shirts and original buttons. Especially exciting were the special classes offered by two artists in residence, Clair Barr, and Michelle Taylor. Clair Barr demonstrated the techniques used to make her humorous clay sculptures, and Michelle Taylor taught water color and print making.

"I've always been interested in art," said Art Club President Karen Johnson. Karen was mainly interested in weaving, printing, and macrame. She sold many of her macrame works at the Bush Art Fair, gift shops, and other shops around Oregon.

Karen said she would do more art in her future. She planned to go to Oregon College of Education and major in art. Karen also hopes to sell a great deal more of her artwork to various Oregon entrepreneurs.

Freshman-Sophomore Concert Choir new to South

As a result of the addition of freshmen to South, the music department expanded and created several new classes designed to fit the needs of ninth as well as tenth graders. The Freshman-Sophomore Concert Choir, which consisted of eighty-five members, was one of these classes. Each prospective member was required to take part in an audition that involved a note and rhythm test, sight reading, and range testing of the voice.

The choir performed at all the major concerts during the school year, including the Christmas performance at the Capitol Rotunda. When Mrs. Branstetter, the choral director, was asked what set this group apart from groups in the past, she stated "Most high schools in Oregon don't have two concert choirs in the curriculum. The Ninth-Tenth Concert Choir is a fine performing organization with a repertoire that includes all styles and periods of music."

Lisa Barber, a tenth grade member of the Freshman-Sophomore Concert Choir had nothing but praise for South's music department. She has been singing since grade school and said, "I sing because I really enjoy it and it's fun."

When asked how she liked the music program, Lisa replied "I think the program is very good and the teachers are excellent."

According to Lisa, in a choir "you learn to get along with other students." She also added "It's fun singing with people your own age."

All that jazz . . .

Jazz Etc., a new musical group, featured the voices of freshmen and sophomores. "One of the main reasons for students to take Jazz Etc.," said Mrs. Branstetter, the director of the group, "was that it provided experience necessary to become a member of a more advanced performing group here at South." The students in the group also felt it taught them how to relate to others.

Some of the main goals of this new group were to develop musical skills within the jazz idiom, to establish a reputation (as they were a new group), and to establish personal relationships within the group. Establishing these goals was meant to help the members of the group sing together in their following high school years.

When asked how she felt the group had done as a whole, Mrs. Debra Branstetter said, "Jazz Etc. was a viable performing organization on it's own."

The group performed a variety of styles of music with emphasis on the Blues, Renaissance, Gospel Rock, and, of course, Jazz.

In competition, Jazz Etc. placed fifth out of sixteen triple A high schools at the Optimist Festival. The group was the only group to compete with only Freshmen and Sophomores.

Members of the group felt that being in Jazz Etc. helped bridge the gap from a variety of junior high school experiences into one positive high school experience.

Girls' Choir works hard and has 'superior attitude'

"This group has had a superior attitude and has consistently worked hard to improve themselves, both individually and as a group." These were the words Mr. Crawford used to describe the Girls' Choir. It was essential for each of the sixty members to enjoy singing and "have a sincere desire to work together as a group to produce a quality choral presentation."

There were not any competitions open to the choir and because of budget limitations they were unable to travel. They did, however, take part in the Fall, Christmas, Winter, and Spring Concerts.

A

"I sing because it's what I'm pretty good at, and it makes me feel good. I can also learn to be better because I'm open to criticism," commented Teri White. Teri, who has been singing for as long as she can remember, was a member of Girls' Choir.

When asked how she felt about the music program here, Teri stated "South has a fantastic program because no one choir is neglected and everybody can be a part of it."

Teri felt that "girls' choirs always sound sort of innocent and sweet without baritone voices, but being in a girls' choir is special because it's easier to understand what the other sections go through in practice.

"If I wasn't a part of a choir, then I'd be out of place. Most of my abilities and knowledge of music have come from choir teachers who really care. South is really lucky to have a director like Mr. Crawford."

Southmen provides a unique experience

Southmen, the all male vocal group at South, offered a unique opportunity for most members. According to Mr. Mike Crawford, director, the choir was made special by the fact that very few all-male choral groups existed at the high school level in Oregon.

Most of the members in the group were younger students. Southmen was felt to be a class in which to gain experience. That was very beneficial for students planning to continue in musical endeavors.

The Southmen performed their four-part harmony at the four main school concerts: Fall, Christmas, Winter, and Spring.

In his last year of high school, Eric Byers had been taking piano lessons since kindergarten. Along with daily practice and lessons from Dr. Cook at Willamette, he was also the accompanist for the Southmen.

Eric hoped to continue in music, either performing or teaching. To help finance his education he won a scholarship to Rick's College in Idaho, and was in the state finals trying for the Brown Scholarship.

When asked which type of music he preferred to play, Eric simply said, "Challenging!"

Concert Choir sings successfully

Concert choir had a busy year. They performed at several school concerts for the student body to enjoy. The public also enjoyed their music at various public performances, such as the Salem All City Festival and The Rotary International seventy-fifth anniversary ceremony.

Concert choir was the most select mixed vocal ensemble in the music department. Mr. Crawford, director, explained why, "These students were experienced in the rehearsal and performance of difficult, four part music. High standards were required in the selection of music as well as in the performance of the students."

Tim Clark, a junior in concert choir commented, "The work was hard, but the rewards from an excellent performance surpassed the work by far."

"I wanted to try singing in a choir. After I did I liked it a lot," commented Mike Smith, a senior in concert choir. Mike started his interest for choir back in his junior high years at Walker. He had been a member of various choirs for six years, including three years in South's concert choir.

When asked his view of concert choir Mike replied, "I think it's fantastic and one of the best classes the school has to offer."

Southernaires go on the road

"Each individual made a commitment for excellence and was willing to spend the many hours needed to achieve this goal," said Mr. Mike Crawford, music director, when asked what he felt was unique about Southernaires.

Besides the time spent singing in school, the Southernaires performed at many concerts and festivals. They placed second at the Optimist Festival held at Willamette University in November. Karen Sexson, who sang many solos throughout the year, received the honor of Outstanding Soloist at the festival. Also in November, Curt Arthur, Jerry Jones, Lee Ertsgaard, Cam Dyck, Rob Hyatt, Lisa Taylor, and Karen Sexson were chosen to sing in the All-State Choir held in Portland in spring.

In February, the Southernaires traveled to the Oregon Music Educators Association State Convention Jazz Night. This was held at Mt. Hood Community College.

The highlight of the year was their trip to Seattle and Vancouver, British Columbia in April. They performed six times throughout the trip.

Besides performing at many competitions and festivals, they also sang at several school concerts and at many local locations such as Nordstroms Mall.

A

"I've had the chance to be in All-State Choir and sing at the state solo contest," said Cam Dyck when asked what opportunities he had had because of Southernaires. Although this was his first year in Southernaires, Cam was in the Concert Choir for two years. He was also in the Leslie Jr. High Concert Choir for two years, and in ninth grade, he was a member of the Lesliearies.

When asked if he planned to continue with music, he replied, "I've been thinking about minoring in music at college, but music will probably be my avocation rather than my vocation."

"I'll always remember the jazz festivals and the unity of the group we had from the hard work. The Southernaire tour really brought us together."

Rah-Rah-Rah . . .

The Varsity Rally had many responsibilities along with the responsibilities of home and school. The rally played several roles for the school. They were Suzy Homemakers for athletic teams. They baked cookies and cakes and all sorts of goodies for participants. They were in charge of crowd control at the games. The rally were artists, getting practice by painting the many locker signs they made throughout the year. Being on rally was a difficult job. The girls had to represent the school in the most positive way. Many people got their first impression of the school by the rally; therefore, they had to be presentable at all times.

Cathy Baker commented on the position of a rally girl. She said, "Rally makes me realize how much work is involved with getting along with others, getting a lot closer with other people on rally. We learned a lot from each other and a lot about ourselves. To be on Rally you need to be able to cooperate with each other. There cannot be all chiefs and no indians, there needs to be one chief and the rest indians. You need time and dedication. If rally does not have dedication, there is no way it can succeed. I think, also, that it's a different type of rally than South's been used to."

J.V. Rally has fun-filled spirited year

"Your goals can never be too high," said J.V. Rally member Becky Dowling. Becky tried out for rally because she felt that it was a good way to show spirit and get involved. "I got to know so many people, which was a lot of fun."

Becky said that she was involved with many activities, including fund raisings, during her busy year. She also commented that rally involved a lot of hard work and dedication, and that she got to know the other girls very well. "We really got to know each other well. It was like we were sisters."

Junior Varsity Rally made a big change from a squad of five to a squad of eight. The squad was also split into two teams, the red team and the blue team.

J.V. Rally not only performed at J.V. games, but at some Varsity games too. They held car washes and bake sales and sold jewelry and game tickets to raise money. The girls not only showed their spirit at the games but also by painting signs and performing at Pep assemblies. "I think the year went very well," said captain Sue McDonald. "The J.V. teams did very well themselves, and it is always fun cheering for the teams. I think each and everyone of us is sorry to see the year end, but we can always look back on it as one of the most fun and exciting experiences we've had."

"Are you ready for the freshmen rally?"

New to the cheerleading squads this year was the freshman rally. With the addition of freshmen athletic teams, it was necessary to add this six member group.

While cheering mostly for the freshman teams, they also spent some of their time at sophomore games.

Leading yells was not the only activity the girls participated in. They also made locker signs, helped with wrestling, pep assemblies, and contributed to the general promotion of spirit throughout the student body.

Saxonetts make changes

Changes were in order for the 1980 Saxonetts. The most important change was a change of advisors. Mrs. Kim Cross took over without the aid of a choreographer. Changes were also made in the appearance of the group. The style of the uniforms went from a long, blousy-sleeved short dress to a Danskin body suit and wrap skirt. The team was smaller, and the routines were more dance oriented. Mrs. Cross said, "We have more dance in our routines because there is only twenty girls, and it's easier to work with smaller groups."

Even though changes did occur, some things remained the same. The girls were still at school practicing at 7:00 in the morning, and performing at over 95% of the home games.

The team was entered in six competitions, two of which were State meets and one city meet. They took third in the Stayton Competition, and second in the Gladstone, and West Albany Competitions. Captain Helen Beers said, "It has been a lot of work for the whole team, but I think it has paid off. We've placed very well in every competition we've been in."

"I have been the choreographer, or literally the 'coach' of Saxonettes this year," said captain, Helen Beers. Helen doesn't expect to pursue dancing as a career, but she has been involved with dance about fourteen years.

The Saxonettes work from ten to twenty hours a week practicing. Helen spent an additional five to ten hours making up routines, looking for and taping music, and teaching routines. She mentioned that co-captain, Kathy Lambert, has been very helpful to her.

"This year we've tried to make Saxonettes more entertaining to watch, more successful in competition and most of all a good learning experience, plus a fun way to get involved in an athletic activity," stated Helen. "It's been very rewarding when we perform well, and hear the students say that they've enjoyed the performance."

Quill and Scroll is re-initiated with seven new members

Quill and Scroll—the International Honor Society for Journalism—includes members in thirty-one foreign countries as well as the United States. Although Quill and Scroll was chartered at South in 1955, it was inactive for several years. Mr. Dean Barr, South's chapter advisor of Quill and Scroll helped re-initiate it at the beginning of the 1979-80 school year.

In order to be chosen for Quill and Scroll, a student must have been a member of the yearbook or newspaper staff for at least one year, have placed in the top one-third of the class, have acquired an

"A" grade the semester before election, and have been recommended by his or her journalism teacher. Nominations were made at the start of each semester. Mr. Barr, the yearbook advisor, along with Mr. Rick Esson, newspaper advisor, and Mr. John Crisalli, photography advisor, formed the nomination committee.

Lisa Wipf and Michelle Privratsky were chosen to be Quill and Scroll members at the beginning of the year. Curt Arthur, Susan Wechter, David House, Doug Thompson, and Colleen Benson were chosen at the beginning of second semester.

"It's one of my major fields of interest, but it's not my first career choice," said Colleen Benson when asked if she was considering going into some area of journalism as an occupation. Colleen was selected to be a member of Quill and Scroll shortly before second semester. She was on the yearbook staff during her sophomore year and was Editor of the 1980 Sword and Shield.

She feels that being involved in journalism "is a great way to meet people and get involved. It's a great learning experience because you grow in your leadership and writing skills and your ability to get along with others."

Because of her involvement in the yearbook, Colleen was able to attend several special events. "I went to a three day yearbook camp where we learned about every aspect of yearbooks. I also went to an Optimist lunch where I was honored as an outstanding student through my work with the yearbook."

Saxons get 'ski-fever'

The Ski Club was the largest school club, boasting 116 members. Not only that, but it was the largest Ski Club ever. Often times the Ski Club combined efforts with McKay High School to increase the number of snow bunnies and ski burns.

South skiers hit the slopes eight times during the season. Sometimes they even got to miss a little school to head to the mountains for a dose of snow to take care of their ski fever.

The Ski Club offered many advantages to the student, not to mention the teachers who chaperoned. They received a discount on their bus and lift tickets. Also included in the deal was the chance to pass a competency for engaging in a lifetime leisure activity.

"So much of high school athletic orientation is toward team sports that students will not be able to participate in after they get out of high school," stated Mr. Rick Esson, the club advisor. "The Ski Club offers participation in a life long sport."

The Ski Club went on two trips which featured night skiing. "Skiing under the lights provides a ski experience that is almost magical," said Mr. Esson.

There were some problems with the weather during the winter, but this only slightly hindered the Ski Club. When the weather became cold and the snow started to fall, one couldn't keep a fearless snow bunny or ski burn off the slopes.

SHAC concentrates on fund-raising

The South High Architecture Club, SHAC, consisted of architecture students who were interested in learning more about the field of architecture and seeing new styles of design.

The main item on SHAC's agenda for the most part of the year was a field trip to Canada. In order to raise money for the trip, numerous fund-raisers were held, including car washes and the sales of candy canes, carrots, and a record number of Dairy Queen coupons. Altogether, the club raised approximately $500.

Due to circumstances beyond their control, however, the trip was shortened to a three day excursion to Seattle, Washington.

According to club advisor, Mr. Rob Huddleston, the purpose of Greenpeace at South was, "To give students the opportunity to become involved with ecology." Unfortunately, a lack of experienced leadership in the club hampered its progression.

In order to increase interest in the group, South Greenpeace planned to purchase a film dealing with the annual seal hunt, whale migration, or another related topics. Money making projects included a year long newspaper drive and a bake sale, which was held early in the year. Newspapers were collected then sold to recycling centers.

At the meetings, members read the "Greenpeace Chronicles" and the "Greenpeace Examiner", along with other literature. Many ecology related discussions were held. The group also followed the activities of the Salem Chapter and Greenpeace USA.

Salem Greenpeace activities included volunteer meetings, a booth at the Salem Saturday Market, the Save-the-Seals Skate-a-Thon, and a Bike-a-Thon in the spring. South's Greenpeace Advisor Mr. Huddleston, was also on the Board of Directors for the Salem Chapter of Greenpeace.

B

Bob Finide, co-leader of South Greenpeace, explained that he was involved because, "I like to help animals. I think that they have rights just like people do." Bob, a junior, was new to the club and planned to continue during his senior year. "It's been hard to get people involved in the club this year. I'm not sure why." Despite setbacks, Bob felt that the club had definite possibilities and simply needed experienced members.

South students run for state government

"Will the Speaker yield. . ." "We will now have pro and con debate," "You're out of order". These statements were common cries heard at the Oregon Youth Legislature held at the State Capitol. Twenty-five students represented the Saxons at Youth Legislature. They ran for offices, made bills, and learned about other governmental procedures.

Three legislators represented South in the elections to legislative offices. These were Dave Bansmer, candidate for Speaker of the House, Janice Boatwright, for Clerk of the House, and Dale Wiedeman, Governorial candidate. Dave and Janice ran unopposed and were elected to their positions. Dale, after much campaigning, ran a hard race but was defeated by the North District's candidate, Dan Cummins.

The first weekend of March brought 350 students from all over Oregon to the State Capitol. Friday night a Governor's Banquet was held, and after dinner speeches by Youth Governor Cummins and special guest, Joe Smith. The rest of the weekend was spent making laws, passing bills, and learning many things about legislative processes. Mr. Hadden, advisor of Youth Legislature, said, "This is as realistic as we can make it without doing the real thing."

A

South's candidate for Youth Legislature Governor was Senior Dale Wiedeman. Dale ran for governor because he was particularly interested in politics and the government.

Dale said he had a lot of enthusiasm for Youth Legislature. His reasons for being involved were because it was fascinating and he had a fun time. "You deal with real issues in a real setting, and get an idea of how the state is run." Dale is not sure of what he'd like to do with his life, but he said, "I want to do something where I can make a definite improvement in life."

Model U.N. analyzes international problems

Model United Nations was a group of students who were interested in world wide problems along with possible solutions for them. Schools from all over Oregon participated in this statewide organization.

In late April they staged a three day "mock" United Nations meeting at the University of Oregon in Eugene. Each school represented different countries and wrote their own resolutions, which were goals they wished to see accomplished. By going through the actual procedures and format, they came up with their own solutions to international problems. The students had the chance to think critically about problems, then find alternatives to them.

South represented Panama and India, and took their place in the mock United Nations. Mr. Smith, advisor of this organization, felt it was a worthwhile program. "It's good that the students have the opportunity to look at problems in a world-wide perspective."

"Being in Model United Nations gives you an in-depth understanding of world-wide problems and the complexities involved in solving them," stated Junior Mike Smith, a first year member of the organization. Mike had a fun time by gaining knowledge of the realities concerning international situations. "At University of Oregon we learned a lot about parliamentary procedure and experienced operating in a committee officially. We met many new people from all over the state, but I think more people should be involved. We need a bigger group."

This is the spring scoreboard page, once again fearlessly giving you the scores of your favorite events. Girls Track and Girls Golf have been mysteriously misplaced; however, they did an extremely good job, with track winning all of their meets. This spring there were five different sporting areas one could have participated in and over 200 games, matches, or meets one could have attended. The athletes did a fine job and once again should be congratulated.

Saxons tie for second place in league play

The 1979-1980 Varsity Baseball team proved that even with little previous varsity experience they could be successful. Their final league record was 12-6. The Saxons tied for a second place position in the league with Lebanon. Led by seniors Kevin Keane and Kevin Stewart, the Saxons won their first league play-off game against North Salem, 3-2. The season, however, came to an untimely end with a second round loss to Lebanon. According to Coach Mike Doran, "This year's team came closer to reaching their potential than many teams in the past few years. I felt our skill and mental determination was reflected in our play when we were down, we were a good come back team."

Catcher, Jim Newell, a senior, took the league title in both Batting Average (.476), and RBI's (18). Kevin Stewart led the league in hits (34). Newell, and Stewart were both named to the first all league team. Members of the team given Honorable mention were: Kevin Keane, Jim Smithy, Ren Santa, Dana Salsbery, Greg Sherwood, and Aaron Thomas.

The year's team awards included: Most Valuable Player: Kevin Stewart, Most Inspirational: Dana Salsbery, and Greg Sherwood, Most Improved: Jim Newell, Golden Glove: Ren Santa.

Describe your feelings about the team:

Kevin Keane: "Playing on the team this year was a success in the fact that I was on a team of guys who made playing together a lot of fun. I can truly say that each member of the team was necessary in making this aspect of the season a success."

Kevin Stewart: "I felt the team began the season playing really good baseball. We hit the ball well, and our record showed it. Towards the end of the season we lost our composure a few times. Over all it was a good season - one game short of the state play-offs is as close as you can come."

Aaron Thomas: "It was a good experience, I feel we could have done even better if it weren't for all the personality conflicts."

J.V.'s have "top" season

The Saxons had "one of the best J.V. teams South has ever had" according to Head Coach Terry Haugen. "Talent-wise this is one of the best sophomore groups we've had here at South in a few years." The team's goal was to be undefeated in 25 games and according to coach Haugen "this was a realistic goal, these guys had the capability to accomplish it."

Of the ten games the J.V.'s played against Salem schools, South won 9 of them. "It's really important to the players to be the best in the city," commented Haugen. "We had the four things that you need to win. We had good pitching and depth, good hitting, and we had good defense. But most importantly - we hated to lose!" The Saxons scored an average of 7 points a game while allowing their opponents only 3 a game.

Some individuals who had outstanding seasons were Buck Williams, who led the team in hitting with .431 batting average. Rick Francis played well at shortstop and had a blistering .531 batting average in the last half of the season. Pitcher Paul Cary led all pitchers with 50 strike-outs. Juniors Scott Edmiston and Bob Briscoe fulfilled leadership roles. According to coach Haugen "they were consistent players who always got the job done." Edmiston batted .375 while Briscoe hit .348. Both were strong players in the field, committing only two errors each the whole season. Earl Fletcher and Dan Huntly worked well with the bats, hitting .365 and .365 respectively.

Sophomore pitcher Paul Cary has been playing baseball for nine years and doesn't see an end to his playing days in the near future. "I started playing in T-ball when I was six. I began pitching when I was around eight. I'm still learning new techniques, but now the motions come without thinking about it. I like to pitch because it's a challenge. With baseball the harder it is the more fun it is. I want to go as far with baseball as it will let me, maybe to college."

First year freshman baseball team a great success

For a first year team, the Saxon Freshman Baseball Team did a great job, combining a win-loss-tie record of 11 wins, 3 losses, and 2 ties. First year coach, Coach Pete Hoffert, was really pleased with the performance of the team throughout the season. The team had wins over Corvallis, Lebanon, North Salem, and McNary to name a few, and beat Memorial (Albany) twice.

Coach Hoffert had a few words to say about the season. "I was hoping we would be competitive while keeping a large number (19) of players on the team. We managed this, to be quite honest, by relying on a few "key" players. The rest of the team members all made valuable contributions at different times that they played during the season."

He also commented on the situation of practice schedules for the team, since the addition made three teams practice on one field with two baseball diamonds. "With the situation at Gilmore which dictated three teams sharing two fields, it was imperative that practice be well-organized. Usually practices were geared around what areas of weakness arose in the previous ball game (ex. work needed on sacrifice bunting, suicide squeeze, double plays, etc.)"

At their last meeting of the season, the team selected Pat Tracy and Ed Johnson as the Most Valuable Players and Steve Valach and Ron Cornutt as the Most Inspirational Players of the team.

It never rains . . .

It was an eventful season for boys' golf with numerous victories along the way. The team started off their success with what was described by Bill Collins as, "the best showing of the season," resulting in a second place to Sprague in the District tournament. Also included in their winnings were first place positions in both the Saxson and Eagle Classics, and second place rankings in the Salem Scramble and the Oly Invitational.

There were also many personal victories within the team, such as that of Bill Collins who openly stated, "I shot 95 in the first four tournaments." Yet at the end of the season he regarded himself as the most improved player when he was ranked 3rd in the District tournament. As for the most Valuable player, it was generally decided that Danny Moore deserved the position due to his constant quality play.

...on the golf course

Though the girls golf team had few members they did manage to obtain several major accomplishments. From the start of their season they had to contend with many strong opponents such as Corvallis and West Albany. Yet the girls succeeded in ranking first in the city meet, second in district, and finally they maintained sixth in the State tournament.

Tracksters 'do it with spirit'

The four track teams of girls', boys', J.V.'s and Varsity, combined for a total of 27 wins and one loss. With a point deficit of only three points, the Varsity boys' team lost to yucko Sprague. Many of track participants made it to their final destiny: STATE. "It was the most successful season we have ever had since I've been here at South," head track coach, Mr. Greg Marks said.

The hurdling and sprinting teams enjoyed a good season. Three of the team's individuals advanced and placed at state. Speedstars Dave Henkel, Tracie Johnson, and Laurie Schaecher all received points at state for their efforts. Laurie and Tracie both enjoyed a first place finish and Dave got a sixth.

Others that should be congratulated for their efforts throughout the season are: Robert Reed and Dan Sreele, sprinters; Randy Reason and Daryl Harr, hurdlers. For the girl's team: Kelly McGhehey and Jeanette Youngman, sprinters, and Judy Sommer, hurdler and sprinter.

Captain of the Girls' Track Team, Laurie Schacher, is one of the premier runners in the state. Coming in first at state in the 100 meter low hurdles, Laurie had a state record with a time of 12.1, but this time was disallowed because it was wind aided. Also at State she came in second in the 300 meter high hurdles, an event in which the previous year she held the state record. Laurie's speed also helped her team in both the mile and 400 relays.

Laurie's look at track is an unselfish one, "People think of track as an individual event, that's not true. It is a team effort. We're all trying for points so that the team will win."

Strong workouts help

The large groups of the weight and jumping players on the track team contributed considerably to the success that the whole team enjoyed during their season. Both teams accumulated large amounts of points that helped give South the edge over such opponents as Crescent Valley and South Albany. Strong workouts, extensive practice, and team work were the essential standards for these participants. They did just that, guided by the coaching abilities of Mr. Grayum (for weights) and Mr. Palmer (for jumpers).

Individual accomplishments were frequent in this group; such as the success of Jeanette Youngman and her improvement throughout the season to become regarded by Coach Palmer as "The most valuable player for the girl jumpers." Another success story is that of John Chester in his unique and top ranking position in the State tournament.

"To get up for a meet I like to be knowledgeable of the other people in the event and to be prepared to where they rank, so I know exactly what has to be done to place," was Judy Sommer's comment on how she prepares for an event. "I also get up for a meet during it. I get excited by others performing and by listening to the coaches."

Judy high jumps for the Saxons, her best jump being 5 feet 6 inches. She is also in the hurdling events and has a leg in the 400 meter relay. "In events that I do, technique work is most important because my speed is not there. I beat some competitors on my technique work alone."

Runners go the distance

Long distance, in spring track, is considered to be the 1500 and 3000 meter runs, with the 800 meter event considered to be a middle distance. Running these distances this year were over thirty of South's students. Coach Ron Cross said, "The season went extremely well. As a group they developed really well and showed lots of improvement."

The girls' team was led by the under classmen, two freshmen, Peggy Murri and Mary Ann Ahmad, and a junior, Cecily McCowen. "Depth, though, was a very important part to the team," Coach Cross stated. "Five girls went to district and one, Peggy Murri, qualified for state." Getting sixth place in the 3000 meter, Peggy helped her team tie for third place at State.

The boys' team, "has some very good runners that show hope for future," Mr. Cross said. Leading the team for the boys were Jim Hutchinson and Steve Siegreest, both qualified and placed in district.

C. Steve Siegreest running in the 800 meter event.

Cross Country in the fall, track in the spring, and running during the summer, is what Cecily McCowen has lined up for the year. During this track season she had track work-outs every other day and road running the rest of the week. She started in long distance because she did not have the speed, but now, as she puts it, "I love the distance." Her events of the 1500 and 3000 meter runs were raced against some of the best runners in the state. Her goals for these events were to . . . "have my times keep going down." She did this at district by beating her own personal best in the 1500 by 4 seconds.

J.V.'s have mid-season 'hot' streak

"We had a good year," comments Coach Mike Stortz, "the girls represented South really well." The J.V. team had a 14-6 season over all, winning 11 straight games in mid-season. "Our goal at the beginning of the season," said Stortz, "was to improve and be competitive. Also, we wanted to prepare girls for varsity competition next year." According to Coach Stortz, the team's greatest improvement was fielding. "We weren't consistent with the bats during the season, but our sound defense kept us going." Stortz attributed much of the team's success to the good group of girls. "They worked hard and made sacrifices. They worked well together and possessed an outstanding team concept."

Though the J.V.'s had a great team effort, there were some outstanding individual efforts. Cathy Krick, who played shortstop, was the leading hitter. Terri Tourville, who later moved up and lettered on the Varsity, was also a key hitter and played catcher. Rosa Banda, according to Stortz, "did a fine job and developed into a fine softball player."

Ever since the fourth grade Denise Shirley has been playing softball and has been a pitcher every year. "My brother used to play baseball," said Denise. "I like the game and the fun he seemed to have, so when I got the chance to play softball I gave it a try."

Denise started out as a pitcher and seems to accept her role as pitcher each year. "I like pitching," comments Denise, "it's different. Each batter is a new challenge. It's great because pitching starts the action of the game." The adjustment from slow pitch softball in junior high to fast pitch in high school was easy according to Denise. "I like fast pitch better than slow pitch. Maybe that's why it's easier."

Girls rained out of chance for state title

Going to the State Play-offs was at the fingertips of the Varsity Softball team, coached by Miss Roberta Perkins. Unfortunately, a postponed game ended the team's chances of going, and a chance at State.

A season record of 13-5 earned the team a right to second place, a long with two other teams. The play-offs were then expected to come. Having regular-season play end just two days before the play-offs, and the State deadline, there wasn't enough time for any play-offs. So, they were cancelled. That sent two teams tied for first to the State Tournament. "I just hope that next year there is more time left to make up games, if needed," stated Miss Perkins.

Miss Perkins felt that the highlights of the season were beating Sprague, McNary, and Lebanon the second time around. "Everyone got stronger as the season progressed, and the competition got tighter every game we played," commented Miss Perkins. She also mentioned, "There was a lot of individual talent, but the problem was putting it together and working as a team." There were also illnesses, injuries, and none other than bad weather, that disrupted the team's coming together.

Jan Wetherbee commented, "Other than the cancellation of the play-offs, our first game against Sprague was one that could have meant the State Tournament or not." The team, behind 3-9, came back to make it 7-9. Then due to rain, the game was called. Ruling set it back to 3-9. "The ironic thing about it was that our other teams were still playing and completed their games," said Wetherbee.

Senior Lesley Ankeny had been playing softball for six years: three years on Varsity at South and three years playing on a summer league team.

"I thought we had a good season, but it could have been better if we would have had some play-offs and a chance for state. The highlights of the season were beating Lebanon and McNary. Lebanon blew us away the first game, and McNary is our roughest competition in the city," stated Ankeny.

Ankeny planned to attend U of Portland and hoped to major in Architecture.

A good season of tennis

With much desire on the girls' part to improve their play, the Girls' Tennis Team finished with a very successful season of seven wins, four losses, and two ties. Miss Terri Robinson, first year coach for the team, was excited about the season. "I really didn't know what to expect. I didn't know what the other teams were like, but the girls were really excited and so was I," said Coach Robinson.

Throughout their competition, the team had a few minor to major problems, especially when it came time to play Corvallis. Five of the seven girls on varsity were gone; three went to a state speech tournament, one was in the hospital, and one was out of town. Other than the Corvallis match, the girls improved in every match they played. At the District meet, Buffy Layton, a Freshman, placed 4th and Sara Paterson and Dergitta Trelstad placed 3rd and qualified for State. Holly Knott, Dina Bishoprick, Michelle Moser, and Joni Whitmore went as far as the finals in the consolation round and Leslie Schriver and Julie Sabin went as far as the quarterfinals of the championship round.

The Junior Varsity had some action playing eight matches during the season and having a win-loss-tie record of four wins, three losses, and one tie. They worked hard to improve their game by practicing on serves, strokes, and strategy with team unity.

Abundant tennis talent

"We had a lot of depth in singles play and an excellent #1 doubles team," commented Tennis Coach John Nagle. With this depth the Varsity Saxons took second in the league. Their final record was 15-2-1, their only loss was to Crescent Valley who took the league title. Led by Jim McBride, Craig Kerr, and Matt Burr the Saxons took eighth in state. The team won the Roseburg tournament as well.

The annual team awards included; Most Valuable Player: Jim McBride, Most Improved: Jay Boardman, and Eric Swenson. Eric was also the team captain for the 79-80 season.

The Junior Varsity team also had a very successful season. Their final season record was 11-1-3. Freshman, Tom Bailey was awarded Most Inspirational by his team members.

A

How does Matt Burr, four year veteran of the South Salem tennis team, feel about tennis? "I like the competition. Everyone should compete in some way. I'm sure that as long as I am playing tennis I'll be playing competitively."

How did Matt get interested in tennis? "Tennis kind of runs in the family, my older brother and sister both played, so did my mom. I guess it was my parents who got me interested, they thought it would be good for the future. It's a sport that will last a lifetime."

Freshman softball has a good first-year season

With freshmen moving into high school, the softball team gained another year of experiencing fast pitch instead of slow pitch, which is played in the middle schools.

Mrs. Pat Mack was the coach of the team. She felt that the season was good, but the team needed more skill development in basics, game strategy, and game knowledge. "I wanted the girls to learn team discipline and responses about themselves and other team members while learning the basics of the game," commented Mrs. Mack.

Having been the first-year team, there were improvements thought to be met in the future. "A greater variety of teams to play. We played McKay four times. We would like to see the Varsity, Junior Varsity, and Freshmen all play at the same places to develop total team attitudes. The freshmen felt left out much of the time," Mrs. Mack said.

A

Monica Gum, a member of the Freshmen Team, felt that the team's first year was a good one. "We had our ups and downs, but it was a really good season," stated Monica.

"McKay was our toughest competition. We lost to them the first games, but came back and beat them the second time," she said.

Monica had been playing softball for two and a half years and her main goal was to become a better fielder and a better batter, which would make her a better team member.

Salem area Rotarians celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary. South's Rotarian program also continued to thrive.

Monthly Rotarians were selected by the Liaison and Welcoming committee. Their selections were based on student leadership, on and off campus.

Along with the honor of being chosen a rotarian, each Rotarian had lunch four Wednesdays at Black Angus, with a banquet dinner sponsored by the Salem Rotary Club.

Rotarians honored in many areas

A

"Like Optimist or any other award, being a Rotarian is a honor," stated Toni Kramer, February's Rotarian.

Toni participated throughout the year in different activities, such as being Activities Editor of the Sword and Shield and being chairperson of the Fund and Finance Committee. She also maintained a grade point average of 3.8 which was also a factor in her being chosen as a Rotarian of South.

When asked about her experience, Toni stated, "It was interesting. It shows recognition for the things you've done."

Students of the Month build to make a great year

A

Eighteen outstanding students were chosen by the student body on the merit of their activities and academics, and given the award of Student of the Month. The selection of two students of the month was a way of giving recognition to those students who were very active during their high school careers. Nominations were only open to members of the senior class.

A student chosen as a Student of the Month was usually involved in many things, speech, drama, sports, academics, rally, student government and student publications. These were only a few of the categories a nominee was likely to be found involved in. Many also participated in activities outside of school: activities such as Youth Legislature, Boy and Girls State, AFS, and other community activities.

Being nominated for Student of the Month also set up criteria for being chosen for other honors such as: Outstanding Student of the Year, chosen by the studentbody, to be honored by the studentbody; and Outstanding Student of the Year chosen by the faculty, to be honored by the Statesman-Journal Newspapers.

Chosen Outstanding Students of the Year by the studentbody were Eric Miller and Sara Paterson. Chosen by the faculty and honored by the Statesman-Journal Newspaper was Dale Wiedeman.

"Evening in the Orient" gives the prom a touch of romance

"An Evening in the Orient" was chosen as the theme of the Junior-Senior Prom because "We wanted something romantic," stated Lynn Beary, chairperson of the Junior Committee.

Fortune cookies, box kites, oriental lanterns, and the band "Forum" were all part of the prom, which was held at the Elk's Lodge. During intermission Karen Sexon, Jim Smithy, Meghan Mahoney, and Rob Hyatt sang while Cheryl Shively accompanied them on the piano.

The Junior Committee worked throughout the year to raise money for the prom. Fundraising activities included bake sales, santagram and valagram sales, plus after game dances.

Many people donated their time and efforts in order to make the prom a success. These people included members of the Junior Committee and many volunteers. Lynn stated that, "One reason the prom was such a success was because of our two advisors, Mrs. Poole and Mrs. Hughes."

It was a lot of hard work, but in the end it was worth it," commented Lynn Beary. "Seeing the final achievements made it all worthwhile.

"It took a long time to establish unity in the prom committee, but in the end everything came together."

When asked what she felt made this prom unique, Lynn replied that, "The decorations were extravagant!" She also added that she believed this was the most expensive prom ever at South.

Lynn was involved with the organizing and planning of the prom because she was a member of the Junior Class Committee. In response to the question as to whether she would encourage others to participate in these kinds of activities, Lynn replied that if a student really wants to get involved in school, he/she should do so by joining a committee. "That's where the 'say' is."

Tragedy hits South as Shakespeare's "Othello" is presented

"Othello", the spring play, was about a great black general, a Moor named Othello, played by Mike Seed, who was driven to a jealous rage by his trusted friend and combat officer, Iago, portrayed by Jeff Deal. This rage led Othello to kill his faithful Desdemona, played by Liza Taylor, and finally ended with Othello taking his own life.

The play was an excellent performance with a good audience and enthusiastic actors and actresses. Mrs. Quambeck said, "The actors always felt the challenge of doing Shakespeare and worked to make his words come alive on stage." The senior actors Jeff Deal, Mike Seed, and Liza Taylor were commended for their dedication to the play.

The tragedy continues . . .

After working behind the scenes, Junior Blake Guage finally participated in a play by acting on stage. Blake's involvement with drama started in the tenth grade at South. "I've been stage manager for 'Funny Girl' and 'The Little Foxes'. I also feel that the addition of Bob Brainard as technical director is the best thing that's happened to South's drama department in quite awhile," said Blake.

He planned to attend Southern Oregon State College, or Montana State University to major in Social Science and minor in Technical Theater. "South's drama department is probably one of the best in the city, and I would bet it is one of the best in the region."

Freshmen and Sophomores present Mexican play

Under the direction of Mrs. Jane Compton, the freshman-sophomore one-act play, "Sunday Costs Five Pesos", was presented in the Little Theater. Parry Keane was the student director for this Mexican folk play.

The setting for the play was a small Mexican village. Fidel fell in love with Berta, who later became angry with him. Berta's friends tell Fidel that she has fallen into a well, and Fidel becomes worried. This brings them back together again.

Sarcastic humor made the play appealing to both high school students and adults. Mrs. Compton chose the play for its humor, as well as the challenge it presented to the actors.

A. Phil Klossen, Dianna Snawder, Christy Wilson, and Parry Keane (student director) rehearse a scene from "Sunday Costs Five Pesos" for a performance at McKinley Elementary School. B. Drea Douglas portrays Glady, a fable-teller, in "Rumpelstiltskin". C. Annette (Karyn Moreland) has a visit from Rumpelstiltskin (Mike Kyle).

Fairy tale, "Rumpelstiltskin," comes alive

"Rumpelstiltskin," another one-act play, was presented with "Sunday Costs Five Pesos". Mrs. Compton also directed this play with the assistance of Mark Tone, student director.

Cole Akeman was to play the part of Rumpelstiltskin but became very ill and was not able to perform. Mike Kyle, production director, stepped in to take his place.

As a fairy tale, "Rumpelstiltskin" was meant for young children. It was the story of a girl, Annette, whose father told the king that she could spin yarn into gold. She is saved by a dwarf, Rumpelstiltskin, only to find that he causes her more problems later on.

The Senior Banquet was a great success with over two hundred Seniors attending. Highlights of the evening included the well done top sirloin steak, a fishing story told by the honored guest Mr. Jim Manuel, and of course, the giving of the Senior Awards.

There were basically three types of awards given to the deserving Class of '80: the serious, serious humorous, and the humorous humorous awards.

The serious awards were given to students on the basis of their academic achievements. The serious humorous were the awards organized voted on by ballot by the Class of '80 the day of the banquet. Then there were the humorous humorous awards based on a general consensus of the Class of '80's general knowledge of the people honored by these awards. These awards were developed and presented by the students speakers, Brian Graziano and Dan Whitehead, and the Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Bob Wirthycomb.

Some examples of these awards were:

BEST OFFENSE .....Carin Gingerich
 BEST DEFENSE .....Tom Seitz
 MOST LIKELY TO BECOME A TERRORIST .....Brent Culver
 MOST LIKELY TO TELL GROSS JOKES IN SEMINARY SCHOOL .....Matt Becker
 MOST LIKELY TO REMAIN
 SHORT FOR THE REST OF HIS LIFE .....Steve Hendrillie
 MOST LIKELY TO BE A RALLY ADVISOR AT AGE SIXTY .....Patri Schmitz
 MOST LIKELY TO RAISE PIGS WHEN GROWN UP .....Matt Isom

A quiet break for seniors and their families

"Seek and you shall find. Ask and it will be given. Knock and the door will be open." With these words, Reverend Edward Henderlire opened baccalaureate.

Graduating seniors, along with family and friends, gathered for the traditional religious ceremony. The ceremony included such things as philosophy from Charley Brown, musical entertainment and a serious talk about the future for the Class of 1980. Although the ceremony did not last long, the prevailing atmosphere caused everyone to consider the total meaning of education. Rev. Whitehead and Rev. Henderlire were both fathers of graduating seniors.

Whistles and Car Calls outside - "Pomp and Circumstance" inside. With this combination, the graduation ceremony began. After thirteen alternating rows of blue and red covered the gym floor, Mr. Ediger addressed the seniors for the last time.

Graduation speakers chosen by the class were Robert Cary and Bergitta Trelstad. Robert's emotional "Pep Talk" reflected on the amount of pride and motivation that he felt our class possessed. Bergitta based her tale parallel to the story of Alice's journey through the looking glass.

The moment each senior had waited a long twelve school years for finally arrived. Four hundred nine students received diplomas (cases) and became graduates. Although graduation had culminated this night, for most graduates it was difficult to pinpoint exactly where it started, or where it would end.

The ONE thing no other Life
Insurance company can offer your family or business is a Massachusetts
Mutual Agent.

When you're ready, talk to a life insurance professional.

COMMUNITY SERVICES

The following non-profit, non-secular, service organizations voluntarily administer to the needs of persons in the greater Salem area. They are there to help you and your family.

They also, being non-profit, can use your support whether it be monetary or the volunteering of your time and energy.

|----------------------------|-------------------------|----------|
| ASSISTANCE LEAGUE OF SALEM | 533 Commercial SE       | 364-8318 |
| CRY OF LOVE                | 2303 Fairgrounds Rd. NE |          |
| Youth Ourreach             | 581-0027                |          |
| Crisis Switchboard         | 581-5535                |          |
| Medical Clinic             | 581-1939                |          |
| PENTACLE THEATRE           | P.O. Box 186            | 364-7121 |
| SALEM ART ASSOCIATION      | 600 Mission St. S.E.    | 581-2228 |
| SALEM SYMPHONY ASSOCIATION | 900 State St.           | 364-5763 |
| UNITED WAY                 | 680 Church St. N.E.     | 363-1651 |

And so—
I have existed
You have existed
We have existed
In a space
Of New Dimensions.
Once upon a time has become
Now.
Now has become
Forever
And forever becomes
What is yet to be
In the Challenge of New Dimensions.
